Timofey T. Shmakov, Omsk 2014
Copyright © 2014 Timofey T. Shmakov

Author's foreword

This paper is a collection of short notes collected by the author while working on the translation of the Pyramid Text, Coffin Texts and many others and has no pretensions to be profound study of every item stated here. All the references to the PT are given according to Allen, James Peter, A new concordance of the Pyramid Texts, VI vols. Brown University. 2013 (https://www.dropbox.com/sh/0xo88uy04urnz0v/o16_ojF8f_).

Some lexical observations on the Pyramid Text material

1)

 ḏt "person, personage, self"[1] also spelled  [2]

The expression n ḏt "of the person" is a way to say "own, proper, personal" as designation of relationship and ownership in Egyptian (which didn't have a word for "own", nor the verb "to have").

zꜣ.k pw n ḏt.k[3]
"this/he is your son of your person",

i.e. "this/he is your own son"

jw.n(.j)…ḏj(.j) n.k jb.k n ḏt.k [4]
"I have come that I may…give you your own heart (lit. your heart of your person)"

There seems to be synonym of ḏt – the word ḏs  and the special word for a king and Sun's ḏt – ḥm "the Person"[5]

ḫtm r gs ḏs nswt [6]
"Sealed near the king's ḏs", i.e. king's person[7]

---

[1] Yuriy Perepiolkin was the first egyptologist who proved the meaning "person" for ḏt, in his fundamental works of 1966 and 1988: Chastnaia sobstvennost v predstavlenii egyptian Starogo carstva (Private Ownership as Viewed by the Egyptians of the Old Kingdom), Palestinskij sbornik 16 (79), Moscow-Leningrad. 1966 (was published in German in 1986), and Hozyaystvo staroegypetskyh velmog (A Farm of the Old Kingdom Officials). Moscow. 1988. The term ḏt in the Middle Kingdom was studied by Oleg Berlev proceeding from Perepiolkin's study (Berlev, Trudovoe naselenie, pp.172-254). It is noteworthy that Harold Hays read n/nt ḏt same in his dissertation, yet did't give literal translation of this phrase: "Pyr 69b: ir.ti ḥr n(i)t(i) ḏ.t=f "Horus's own Eyes"" (Hays, Structure, p. 78, note 74).

[2] The spelling is influenced by ḏt "ḏt–eternity", thus having {strip of land}-N17 as secondary determinative.

[3] §§160c, 213b

[4] §1786b.

[5] Cf. Goedicke, Die Stellung, p. 51–68; Baines, Origins, p.132; Strudwick, Texts from the Pyramid Age, 5.3.2, p. 31. The feminine form was ḥmt. However rarely it can be used as a reference to a person of common people, e.g. jr.t(w) mjtt n ḥmw.tn m-ḫt ḥtp kꜣ.tn m ꜥnḫ (stHermitage 1073) "(Then) similar will be done to your persons, after your ka(s) will have had enough of life (i.e. after you die)"

[6] Urk.I:283:18

Other examples of n ḏt "personal"[8]:

pr ḏt / pr n ḏt "personal/private house (i.e. farm)"; also pr n ḏt.f "his private house[9]"[10], jz ḏt / jz n ḏt "personal/private tomb"[11]

sn ḏt "personal brother"[12]

n ḏt "he of the person" = "personal/own man"[13]

ḏt "personal/own man"[14]

Examples with the ownership identified:

jn sn.s ḏt…jr n.s jz pn ḏt.s[15]
"It is her private brother (i.e. her trustee)…who made for her this tomb of her own"

jr ḥm jz(.j) pn n ḏt jr.n(.j) sw m šw jmȝḫ.(j) ḫr nswt r ḫt nb(t)[16]
"As to this private tomb of mine: I have made it in the shade (i.e. in the comfort) of my nurture/boon(s) from the king more than (at the expense of) anything (else)"[17]

2)

rḏw  , ḥwȝȝt  , ḫmw  , fdt  , ḏwt jrt[18]  / jrt[19]

All these words are the reference to the liquid which perpetually decaying Osiris's corpse emits and the corpse of the deceased identified with him :

rḏw "bad outflow" – the root of the word seems to be ḏw "be/become bad"[20]

---

[7] direct genitive, nswt and ḏs nswt are in honorific graphical transposition.
[8] see Jones, Titles, # 1767
[9] lit. "the house of his person".
[10] the expression of the Old Kingdom and later, not "estate" or "funerary domain".
[11] Not "tomb of eternity", the Old Kingdom expression, Urk.I:14:15, 15:4, Hassan, Giza II, fig. 231, p. 213, fig. 240 after the p. 220.
[12] Not "brother of the estate" nor "brother of the endowment"), the Old Kingdom expression, i. e. hired mortuary servant, also trustee, deputy, representative (see Garcia, A new inscription), this title doesn't designate blood relation and might show the rate of confidence between people. sn ḏt seems to be a variant of just ḏt/n ḏt "personal man". For the references, see Jones, Titles, ## 3324, 3325.
[13] Old Kingdom and later see Jones, Titles, ## 1767, 1769-1775. Cf. it with n(j)w ḫt.f (§647b) "his own ones", lit. "these of his belly" = "his children".
[14] Old Kingdom and later, e.g. ḏt.s (Urk.I:273:1) "her personal man", i.e. "her servant/menial" or a variant of the sn ḏt, for more references, see Jones, Titles, # 3747.
[15] Hassan, Giza II, fig. 226, p. 205.
[16] Myśliwiec, Merefnebef, the northern inscription of the façade.
[17] For the reading of jmȝḫ see below.
[18] §§746b, 840c, 843b, 851a, 1978c
[19] §§29a, 639b, 830b, 1616b.

[20] Both words are spelled with the same sign – , only Pepi-Neferkare's copy sometimes spells it with ḏ + w ḥw33t "putrefying liquid" – the root of the word is ḥw3 "decay" ḫmw "ptomaine, corpse's outflow, marks of decay" – always[21] except once[22] has {flowing water} det., hence the reading "dust" is excluded[23].

fdt "(corpse's) perspiration, sweat" – labeled as "bad perspiration" in §1801c, the euphemism for putrefaction.

ḏwt jrt "the bad (that is) repugnant to NN" or just jrt "that which is repugnant to (lit. that which is against) NN"

dr.n ḥrw ḏwt jr(j)t tjt m jfdt.f j.ḫm.n stš jrt.n.f jr tjt m ḫmnt.f[24]
"Horus has disposed of the bad repugnant to Teti in his four days period, Seth has committed to oblivion (by amending) what he had done to (lit. against) Teti in his eight days period"

There is an implied word-play in the passage: the jfdt.f "his four days period" hints at (an unmentioned but implied) fdt.f "his (putrid) sweat" while ḫmnt.f "his eight days period" hints at ḫmw.f "his putrefaction", the whole passage implies:

"Horus has disposed of the bad repugnant to Teti expressed in his sweat, Seth has committed to oblivion (by amending) what he had done to (lit. against) Teti expressed in his putrefaction"[25]

nj jmk.k pjpj pw nj fdt.k pjpj pw nj rḏw.k pjpj pw nj ḫmw.k pjpj pw[26]
"Absent is your rot, Pepi; absent is your sweat, Pepi; absent is your bad outflow, Pepi; absent is your putrefaction, Pepi"

…
rwd jwf.k nḏm mtw.k ḫntš.k m ꜥwt.k nbt jp.k ḥꜥw.k tm.(w) wḏ3.w nn ḏwt jrt.k r-sj[27]
"(your flesh is firm, your vessels are sweet, you marvel at all your limbs, you feel (jp.k) your complete body sound,) there is no the bad repugnant to you at all (i.e. there is no rotting of yours)"

This is the reason why a deceased is convinced that

---

[21] §§735c, 1292c, 1363a. The sign {mast with sail}-P5 that occurs as the determinative of ḫmw in the M.K. (CT I, 90a, 117c, 137c, CT III, 248-249e, CT VI, 223i) is either scribe's misunderstanding or an influence of the adjective-verb ḫm "be/become dry". However there is another proposition, see note 197 below (item # 7).

[22] §747b, it has ∘ ∘ ∘ det., however the same det. occurs in fdt «sweat» --  (§§1263c, 1283a) =  (§730d); rḏw §§23a W, 308f T; ḥw33t, §§722d, 788b P).

[23] The use of the verb wḫ3 "clear away, shake off" with both t3 "earth" (§§1067a, 1068b) and xmw (§§735c, 747b, 1292c, 1363a) doesn't prove that t3 ~ ḫmw and hence that ḫmw would mean "dust". Rather it means that both words represent signs of a dead and decaying body that need to be removed. (t3 "earth" probably indicates the early custom to bury a body in the earth or dust, or just refers to the plain burial of most people without a sarcophagus). That wḫ3 is not used exclusively for the removal of earth/dust is indicated by cases in which this verb is used with liquids, such as rḏw "bad outflow", e.g. CT VI, 394o: wḫ3(.j) n.k rḏw jr jf.k r t3 "I have cleared away for you the bad outflow from your flesh to the ground" and by the use of other verbs instead of wḫ3 when dealing with earth, §747b: j.dr(.j) t3.k "that I may remove your earth".

[24] §§746b-c.

[25] cf. PT 670, §1978c: fd.n.f fdt [jrt] pjpj m fdnw.f hrw "He has pulled up the sweat [repugnant to] Pepi on his fourth day" and the descendant of this passage CT VI, 383k: fd.n.f fdt jrt jf.f m hrw fdnw.f "He has pulled up the sweat repugnant to his flesh on his fourth day". In the second part of the current passage the explicit word-play is between j.ḫm.n "has negated" and ḫmnt "eight days period" (cf. also PT 670, §1978d; CT VIII, 1978d has similarly ḫmn "eight days period").

[26] §1283a-b.

[27] Urk.IV:114:15-115:2

sṯ.k m sṯ.sn fdt.k m fdt psḏtj[28]
"your smell – is their (i.e. gods') smell, your sweat – is Dual Ennead's sweat" fdt.j fdt ḥrw sṯ.j sṯ ḥrw[29]

"my sweat – is Horus' sweat, my smell – is Horus' smell"

In the CT rotting Osiris says of himself:

ḥwꜣ.n.j jm snsn.j jm m rn.j pw n snsn rmṯ nṯrw ḥwꜣꜣt.j pw ʿntjw ddw n.s mwt.j ḥwt-ḥrw r dp.s sṯ.j pw snṯr [ddw n.s mwt.j] ḥwt-ḥr r kꜣp.s rḏw.j pw ḥknw ddw n.s mwt.j ḥwt-ḥr r jwf.s[30]

"I have rotted there, I have stunk there in this my name of one who rallies[31] men and gods:
My putrefying liquid – is myrrh, which my mother Hathor puts for herself on her head;
My (foul) smell – is incense, [which my mother] Hathor [puts for herself] in her censer,
My bad outflow – is ḥknw-oil which my mother Hathor puts for herself on her flesh"

From following passages it is clear that annual Nile's inundation was considered by ancient Egyptians as putrefying liquid which Osiris's perpetually rotting corpse is shedding. Osiris–Hapi (i.e. Osiris – Inundation) says of himself:

ḫprw.j pw ꜣḫt ḥ rḏw fdt.j pw prrt m jf.j prt[32]
"The season of Inundation – is my form that sheds[33] bad outflow,
The season of Growing – is my sweat which comes out of my (corpse's) flesh"

jw ḥwꜣꜣt wšr jtrw[34]
"putrefying liquid has become shallow, the river has dried up"

mḥ mrw jꜣḫw jtrw m r.f ʿbw pr m jsjrt[35]
"Canals are full of (and) rivers are deep/full-flowing with the impurity came from Osiris('s corpse)"[36]

3)

nb jmꜣḫ  and jmꜣḫw  , jmꜣḫw ḫr NN

The deceased in the texts have different designations: jmntjw "westerners" – according to the usual location of the necropolises in the western desert, ꜣḫw "the "magicians"[37], zjw n kꜣw.sn "those went to [28] §§730c–d.

[29] §1113c
[30] CT IV, 182s-83e.
[31] or "one who is friendly to the men and gods".
[32] CT IV, 141j-142a.
[33] ḥ is the verb ḥj "shed", it occurs in §§707b, 1146a, PT *706, §32.
[34] CT III, 28b-c.
[35] §§848a–b.
[36] ʿbw here, seems to mean "uncleanness, dirtiness, impurity", the same word in §§207a, 208c and in Old Kingdom warning inscriptions, e.g. Urk.I:49:1-2: jr z(j) nb aqt.f Hr twt(.j) pw m abw.f jr z(j) nb aqt.f Hr twtw(.j) pn m abw.f "As for any man who will enter into the presence of this my statue in his (state of) impurity; as for any man who will enter into the presence of these my statues in his (state of) impurity".
[37] ꜣḫw are sometimes labeled as rḫw r.sn "those who know their spell(s)" and ꜣḫ as rḫ r.f "who knows his spell(s)" – read # 7 below.

their kas"[38], nbw kꜣw "possessors of sustenance"[39], nbw rnw[40] "owners of names", štꜣw jswt[41] "inaccessible/undercovered of places"[42], jmjw-jzw.sn[43] "those in their tombs/mastabas"

Among these designations three deserve special attention: nbw ḫrwt/ḫrt "…", nb/nbw jmꜣḫ "…" or just jmꜣḫww "…" and nbw kꜣw "…".

These three terms are usually translated as "lords/owners of property", "lords of honor/veneration"[44] and "lords of kas"

In-depth study allows revising the usual readings:

The word combination nbw ḫrwt/ḫrt once occurs in the Coffin Text having a specific determinative after ḫrwt/ḫrt:

 and  [45]

This indicates that  mentioned in §836e and  which occurs in §§152a, 154a, 156a, 158a, probably must be read "lords/owners of slaughtering cattle[46]" and "lord/owner of the slaughtering cattle"[47] respectively.

This very sign {bull with legs tied for slaughter}-E176 occurs as irregular determinative [48] after the verb ḫr "fall" in the PT of Teti[49], probably to provide Teti with slaughter bulls which will become alive through the magic of the spells. This also exposes the literal meaning of ḫr(w)t – "fallen animals", i.e. laying on the ground, tied, ready to be slaughtered.

But let's go back to the term nb jmꜣḫ the meaning of which becomes clear in the light of the designation of the deceased as "owner of the sacrificial cattle" and the following passage, where it is

---

[38] §§598c (j.šmw n kꜣw.sn), 948b, 975c, 1165b, *765, §§10, 16; CT IV, 366o; Outside the PT in singular zj n kꜣ.f "he who went to his ka-force".

[39] §§598a, 719d, 906e, 1215d, 1574b; CT IV, 6c-7b: NN pn bꜣt tw nt ꜥnḫ…s.dfꜣt nbw kꜣ(w) nbw ḫrt jrrt pꜣḳw n ꜣḫw «this NN – is this bush of life…who nourishes owners of sustenance, owners of slaughtering cattle, who gives thin bread to the magicians (ꜣḫw)»; cf. also CT VII, 2d.

[40] §1765c.

[41] §§134c, 656d, 1641b etc.

[42] I.e. inhabitants of their burial shafts, which were hidden/inaccessible.

[43] §1641a.

[44] However Nigel Strudwick left this term untranslated and gave a review of suggested readings for this term, including that of Helck which is close to mine, though I came to my reading of jmꜣḫw independently from Helck (Strudwick, Texts from the Pyramid Age, 5.3.1, p. 30).

[45] CT IV, 11d (also occurs in CT IV, 60g, V, 363d, but without determinative).

[46] Wb.III:322:6.

[47] Thus "lord of sacrificial cattle in the hall (lit. the place of the four papyrus-shaped columns)". It is notable that by its own the ḫrwt doesn't or doesn't have to make any sense, because ḫrwt in the sense of "property, goods" is used with the direct object of the goods' possessor, e.g. jnn ḫrt ḫꜣswt nb(t) n nb.f (Urk. I:123:17) "the one who brings in the goods of all the foreign lands for his lord", §263a sbꜣ spd ḥꜣt ꜣw šmwt jnn ḫrt ḥrt n rꜥ rꜥ nb "a star with sharp front and extensive goings, who brings in the goods of the Above for the Sun every day", PT *757, §17 […mꜣꜥtj]{two boats} jtt ḫr[t ḏsr-rmn n tm] "who takes possession of the property of [the One who Raises His Arm for Atum]".

[48] For such irregular or secondary determinatives see Shmakov, Critical Analysis.

[49] §§292a T, 418a,b T, 430a,b, 431a,b T, 671c, 672d T, 679d,e, 680a, 721a T.

used in the context of providing the deceased with the meat of the slaughtered animal:

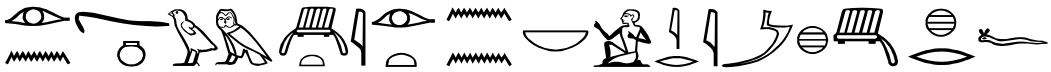

šbt n.k ḥr nmt ḫntj jmntjw jr swn.k nj nbw jm3ḫ[50]
"A bundle of ribs from the butcher's block of Foremost of Westerners – for you, in accordance with your state (as one) of the owners of a bull's spine (with ribs)[51]".

However, it seems that jm3ḫ was a very ancient word[52] because, by the time of the first autobiographies and other inscriptions of the Old Kingdom came down to us, it has the meaning of any food or even, probably, any boon obtained from  the superior(s) or survivor(s)[53].

The expression r jm3ḫ NN ḫr NN  "to be (lit. toward) NN's nurture/boon from NN"

NN…nb jm3ḫ ḫr nb.f rˁ nb…jrt.n n.f z3.f jm3ḫw.f…r jm3ḫ.f ḫr.f sk sw ḫp(.j) n k3.f[54]
"NN…possessor of nurture from his lord every day…(architrave) made for him by his elder son, his fosterling (jm3ḫw)…to be his nurture (i.e. a boon for him) from him (son). Notice he (already) went to his ka[55]"

jr.n.(j) nw m 3wt.(j) jrt.n n.(j) nb.(j) jr jm3ḫ.(j) ḫr.f[56]

---

[50] §§811d-e N.

[51] Actually "(one) of the owners of nurture/nurturing", as per the reading proposed below. It is notable that Oleg Berlev read it (nb jm3ḫ) similar as "the possessor of spine/marrow", however he meant that the spine of a deceased is meant as he wrote "not a pile of bones, but viable organism with the support of a body and life-giving marrow", and commented "In epithets it is usually indicated who provides the deceased with a spine: a lord, a king or relatives (in the latter case it is clear that the building of a tomb was meant) or a deity. At the time of the IV-th dynasty the deity is exceptionnaly "Elder God", in abbreviated form – "God"". Nevertheless, Berlev didn't take into account cases where jm3ḫw is a reference/title of an alive person, e.g. in the Tale of the king Khufu and the Magican, Dedi is referred as jm3ḫw, i.e. nurtured one (from the king's property). It seems, however, that his reading was a guess, because he didn't adduce any arguments for his brilliant proposition (Berlev, Sculptura, pp.43-44, note л). It also must be noted here that even though the sign depicts {bull's spine with cerebrospinal fluid outflowing} there is an image where it was depicted without {cerebrospinal fluid} –  (Quibell, Excavations, II, pl. 22 ). It seems that it meant to have some (non-depicted) meat too, probably just like in the determinatives for the words spḥt nt sprw "a bundle of ribs" (Wb.IV:105:14, for ex. L.D.II:67, 70) –  and šbtj "a pair of ribs" (§811d N) –  . In both signs knob of meat is not depicted which doesn't mean that bare bones were presented (cf. F42 with the knob of meat depicted – ). As so, i.e. as having meat, originally jm3ḫw could be a spinal part of the bull's carcass with meat which a person could have from a tribe leader as a reward or a sign of favor.

[52] It doesn't occur befor the dynasty 4, however, it doesn't and can not mean that it did not exist before this dynasty.

[53] E.g., "I made this my tomb in the comfort (šwt, shadow) of my boon(s) from the king who brought me sarcophagus" (Urk.I:51:2-2)

[54] Urk.I:34:2-6.

[55] I.e. was dead. This is the emphasizing of the duty/promise fulfillment by the son and his long memory of his father.

[56] Urk.I:225:18. This is very noteworthy passage: 3wt and jm3ḫw here both mean benefit – "gift" and "nurture", and both are

"I have made this (tomb) for my gift which my lord made for me to be my nurture/boon from him"

jnk dbḥ sn ḫr nswt r jm3ḫ.(j)[57]
"I am the one who asked them (2 sechat-measure of tillage) from the king to be my nurture/boon" jn ḥmt.f jrt n.f jr[58] jm3ḫ.f[59] ḫr.s <s>k sw ḳrs.(j) m št.f nt jmnt[60]

"It is his wife who made (it, i.e. lintel) for him to be his nurture/boon from her. Notice he was (already) buried in his property (lit. thing, i.e. tomb) of the West"

[…] nt pr(t)-ḫrw rḏjt.n n.(j) nswt r jm3ḫ.(j)[61]
"[…] of the offerings which the king gave me to be my boon/for my benefit"

jr 3ḥt tn rḏjt.n n.(j) nswt r jm3ḫ.(j)[62]
"As to this tillage which the king gave me to be my boon/for my benefit"

[jr njwwt.(j)] nt ḏt.(j) rḏjt.n n.(j) nswt r jm3ḫ.(j)[63]
"[As to my settlements] of my ownership which the king gave me to be my boon/for my benefit"

j[r] zj nb jrt.f ḫt r nw jr.n.(j) r jm3ḫ.(j) ḫr nb.(j)[64]
"[As] to anyone who will make a thing against this (tomb) which I have made for my benefit from my lord"

[…] r.f m r-3w r jm3ḫ.(j) [ḫr ḥm.f][65]
"[…] from Tura to be my nurture [from His Person]"

Similar inscriptions

z3t.f z3.f jr n.f nw ḫft jm3ḫ.f ḫr.f[66]
"His daughter (and) his son (are the ones who) made for him this (architrave)…to be his nurture (i.e. boon) from him (son)"

dw3.tn nṯr nb n s3ḥw-rˁ jr n(.j) nw jnk jm3ḫw.f[67]
"You shall thank every (lit. any) god for Sahura who made this (tomb) for me – I am his fosterling/nourished one".

jm3ḫ  can be an instrument of payment:

---

written with {bull's spine with cerebrospinal fluid outflowing} sign, which one more time, if I am not mistaken in my analysis, refers back to the ancient times when a leader of a tribe were cutting the carcass of slaughtered bull and were distributing cuts.
[57] ibid:164:1.
[58] or r{j}
[59] or jm3ḫ{ḫ}.f
[60] Hassan, Giza I, fig. 172.
[61] Urk.I:12:16-17
[62] Urk.I:14:6-7
[63] Urk.I:14:16-17
[64] Urk.I:35:1-2.
[65] Urk.I:233:5.
[66] ibid:32:6-7.
[67] ibid:40:1-3.

[jr.n.(j) jz.(j) pw] m jm³ḫ.(j) ḫr nswt [68]
"I have made this my tomb for/with my nurture/boon(s) from the king"

Cf. it with the similar statement in the same inscription jr.n.(j) jz.(j) pw m jšt.(j) m³ʿ[69]

"I have made this my tomb for/with my honest(ly acquired) property"

thus jm³ḫ ~ jšt m³ʿ

jr.n.f nw ḥr t jm³ḫ[70]
"He has made this (tomb) for/with bread (and) nurture"

There also is the expression m šwt jm³ḫ(.j) ḫr NN
"in the shadow (i.e. in the comfort [71]) of a nurture from NN (king or lord)"

jn sn.s ḏt…jr n.s jz pn ḏt.s sk s m šwt jm³ḫ.s nfr ḫr nswt rʿ nb[72]
"It is her personal brother (i.e. her trustee)…who made for her this her personal tomb while she was (lit. notice her) in the shadow of her beautiful (i.e. fair/merited) nurture from the king"[73]

The expression

ḥtp ḏj nswt jnpw…ḳrs fjf m st jm³ḫ ḫr nṯr ḫr r(m)ṯ[74]
"An offering given by the king and Anubis: burial of Fife in the state (lit. place) of nurture/nurturing from/by a god (and) from/by people" jr.n(.j) n.sn nw sk sn ḫp{t}.jj r jmnt m st jm³ḫ ḫr nṯr[75]

"I made this for them, notice (i.e. when) they went to the west in the state (lit. place) of nurture/nurturing from/by the god"

There is also an expression jm³ḫ nfr  "beautiful (i.e. honest/fair) nurture":

jr.n(.j) sw m šw jm³ḫ(.j) nfr ḫr (r)mṯ ḫr nṯr[76]
"I have made it (i. e. the tomb) in the shade of my honest(ly acquired) nurture from people and god"

[nj zp ḏd(.j) ḫt nb(t) ḏw(t) r] rmṯ nb n [sḫ]m jr.f n mrw(t) wnn jm³ḫ(.j) nfr(.j) ḫr nṯr ʿ³[77]
"[I have never said something bad against] any people to a potent person (lit. the one who controls

[68] ibid:49:7, similarly ibid:35:1-2: nw jr.n.(j) r jm³ḫ(.j) ḫr nb.(j) "that which I made for my nurture from my lord".
[69] ibid:50:1.
[70] Urk.I:229:12.
[71] Egypt had and has hot climate, to be in a shadow of something is an idiom for being in comfort conditions.
[72] Hassan. Excavations at Giza II. Fig. 226, lit. "in the shadow of her beautiful bull's spine from the king"
[73] It is possible, however, to analyze jm³ḫ here as a verb in the form of an infinitive and read it as "in the shade of her beautiful feeding/nurturing by the king" (ḫr is sometimes used instead of jn to introduce the subject of an action).
[74] Hassan, Giza I, pl. 64.
[75] Urk.I:161:17.
[76] Hassan, Giza II, fig. 206, p. 173:
[77] Hassan, Giza II, fig. 208, p. 175, for the restoration, cp. Urk.I:123:1.

when he acts) for the sake of my nurture to be honest(ly acquired) from the Elder god"

When jm3ḫw is spelled as a noun it seems to be a noun of agent "fosterling", "nurture beneficiary/receiver/grantee"

Note, that jm3ḫw often occurs in the context of food supply:

ḥtp ḏj nswt ḏj n.f pr(t)-ḥrw nbt m pr n (n)swt jt m ḥnwt ḫbs mrḥt m prwj-ḥḏ […] ḫt bnt m pr ꜥḳt ꜥwt nt jf r rt jzt pr(t)-ḫrw nbt ḏḏt n jm3ḫw […][78]
"An offering given by the king: given to him are any offerings from the house of the king, barley from the granary, garment (and) oil from the two treasuries […] sweet meal from the house of supply, pieces (lit. limbs) of meat from the gate of the butcher's shop, any offerings given to a nurtured one […]"

jnk prjj-ḫrw n.f m jwnt mm jm3ḫ[ww][79]
"I am the one for whom offerings are made in Denderah among nurtured one[s]" t wꜥb pw n jstjr/jnpw jw n zjz jm3ḫw[80]

"this is the clean bread of Osiris/Anubis which is/existing (jw) for Sise–nourished one"

ḏ3 NN jr sḫt jst nfrt nt nṯr ꜥ3 jrrt.f jrw jm.s m jm3ḫww wḏ.f sn n k3w s.jp.f sn n ḥ3bw NN 3 pw wḏ.f NN n k3w s.jp.f NN n ḥ3bw[81]
"Ferry NN to the marsh of the Elder god's beautiful seat, in which he takes (lit. makes) an accounting/census of the nourished ones: he prescribes them to the sustenance (k3w) and registers them to catches of fowl.
That is what NN is (i.e. a nourished one too), and he will prescribes this NN to sustenance (k3w) and register Pepi to catches of fowl"[82].

psḏtj jṯ n.ṯn NN ḥnꜥ.ṯn jr sḫt ḥtp jr swn.f pw n jm3ḫw[83]
"Dual Ennead, take NN with you to the Marsh of Rations, according to this his state of a nurtured one"

ḫp.f ḥr w3wt nfrt ḫppt jm3ḫw nbw k3w ḥr.sn[84]
"He walks on the beautiful roads on which nurtured ones who have sustenance (k3w) walk".

jm3ḫww zbb r ḥtpt [85]
"Nurtured ones who are going for nourishment"

As a reason for a good behavior nj zp ḏd.(j) ḫt nb ḏwjw š3b r r(m)ṯ nbw n mrr.(j) hrt b3ḳt wnn jm3ḫ.(j) ḫr nṯr ḫr r(m)ṯ ḏt [86]

"There was no occasion that I said anything badly (or) deceitfully (lit. crookedly) against any people because I wanted peace (and) well-being (lit. brightness), (and that) my nurturing (i.e. of me) be from

[78] Urk.I:175:10-13.
[79] Urk.I:269:12.
[80] Kanawati-Hassan, Ankhmahor, pl. 44, 49. In the butchering scenes the tomb owner is referred as jm3ḫw n jnpw "nourished one of Anubis".
[81] §§1191a-92b.
[82] Чтобы подытожить для русскоязычных читателей моей работы, я предлагаю переводить термин jm3ḫ как "корм" или "кормление" (также "благо"), jm3ḫw как "выкормыш" или "кормимый".
[83] §§1203d-e M.
[84] Hassan, Giza II, fig. 237, after p. 218.
[85] CT I, 174a-b.
[86] Urk.I:204:9-10.

the god (and) people forever"

jm3ḫw, and it must be clear, refers to the life on earth[87] as well as to the afterlife. While alive, the ancient egyptian officials call themselves in their inscriptions jm3ḫw ḫr nswt – "nurtured by the king", which is obvious, because they themselves enumerate in their autobiographies benefits asked and received from a king (tillages, settlements, tomb equipment, including sarcophagi, false-doors and tombs themselves), it was king who feed them and provided them with other means of living, cf.

jw.j m jm3ḫy n ḫr nswt[88] "I am nurtured of the king's property", i.e. I am feeding from the king's property (lit. that which with the king), which seems to be a variant of jw.j m ʿnḫ n ḫr nswt[89] "I am the living one of the king's property"

In the afterlife they become subjects of the heavenly king – father–the Sun, the Elder God and are called then jm3ḫw ḫr nṯr ʿ3 "nurtured by the Elder God", most important gods of the afterlife are also mentioned as nurturers of the deceased – Anubis and Osiris.

zb jm3ḫ

This expression often occurs in the Middle Kingdom in connection with the attainment of the old age, its literal meaning is "reach/attain nurture/boon" which is probably close to modern "to retire on a pension", defining jm3ḫw of this age as "retiree, pensioner":

jnk nḫḫ zb jm3ḫ.f[90]
"I am an old man who reached his nurture"

jnk zb ḥtpt jr jm3ḫ[91]
"I am one who reached nourishment[92] (and) earned (lit. made) nurture/boon(s)" ḏj jmnt ʿ.s r.f m jr ḥtpt zb jm3ḫ[93]

"The West(ern goddess) picked him up in her hand(s)[94] as one who earned (lit. made) nourishment (and) reached nurture/boon(s)"

zb jm3ḫ ḫr nb.f[95]
"the one reached nurture/boon(s)/benefit(s) from his lord"

---

[87] jm3ḫ as a reference to alive, cf. mkt.sn zš3.f twrt.sn ḫntjw.f ḏdt.sn ḥtp dj nswt… jw.f r j3w n njwt.f r jm3ḫ n sp3t.f (Urk.VII:53:20--54:4) "those who will protect its (i.e. the tomb's) writings, those who will guard its statues, who will say 'An offering given by the king'…He is to be an elder of his town (and) fosterling of his district"; West. 7, 20: nḏ(.j) ḫrwt jm3ḫy pw "This is inquiring after the state of the fosterling".
[88] Urk.VII:30:16.
[89] Urk.IV:34:12-13.
[90] CT I, 174g-h.
[91] Urk.I:46:16.
[92] It is noteworthy that even though there is no the food determinative  after ḥtpt, it still can have the meaning "nourishment" rather than "welfare, contentment".
[93] Hassan, Giza II, fig. 208b, p. 175.
[94] Lit. "The West gave her hand(s) toward him" – "give hands toward" is the idiom for picking up something/someone in one's hands.
[95] Mariette, Mast., D38, p.269.

The meaning of kɜw  in the expression nbw kɜw  is clear in the passage of §§1191a-92b cited above and in the expression – nḥb kɜw[96]  "give out sustenance"[97]:

jnk jwn ꜥɜ m wɜst nḥb kɜw.f m ḫntyt jw s.ꜥnḫ.n.(j) jw-m-jtrw rnpwt ḳsnwt…jw ḫrp.n.(j) jtj-šmꜥj n jnj n ḥfɜt m ḫt jw-m-jtrw s.ꜥnḫ.t(j)[98]
"I am the big support(er) in the Theban nome, the one who gave out his sustenance in the Southland. I fed Iuemitru (in) hard years…I directed thin barley to Ini (and) to Hefat, after Iuemitru was fed"[99].

nḥb NN kɜw mṯn NN jswt ḏj NN ḥtpwt sšm NN ꜥɜbwt [100]
"NN gives out sustenance, NN allocates tables (lit. places), NN gives nourishment, NN distributes abundant meals"

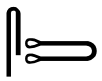

The name of the god Nehebkau thus means "Sustenance Granter" which is confirmed by the passage where this god performs his duties – provides meal:

njs.t jr tjt jn rꜥ ḏj.t n.f jḫt jn nḥb kɜw[101]
"Teti will be called by the Sun, he will be given a meal by Sustenance-Granter"

Pyramid Texts persistently say about the importence of reporting a deceased's fair reputation/name (rn nfr) to these two gods who were providing him with food – Sun and Sustenance-Granter [102]

jn wn zɜ rꜥ jr.f st.f jr.f st pjpj pn jn wn zɜ rꜥ wḏɜt.f wḏɜ pjpj pn ḥḳrt.f ḥḳr pjpj pn[103]
"Is there (another) son of the Sun whose table he[104] lays? (While/whereas) he lais this Pepi's table. Is there (another) son of the Sun who may be sound while he hungers? (Whereas) this Pepi is sound while this Pepi hungers"[105]

4)

Verbs of attracting attention (2-inf.) mj  /  and (2-lit.) sk/sṯ  /  , (2-lit.) gr  , (3rd-inf. ?) ḥm  .

[96] §§161b, 311a, 315b, 512d, 2040a.
[97] kɜw – "food" (Faulkner, Dictionary, p. 283), "energy, nourishment" (Allen, M. E., Essay 7, p. 80, Essay 8, p. 95). It seems that kɜw in names also has the meaning "sustenance".
[98] CG 20001 b, 2-6.
[99] However, there is an expression nḥb kɜ, if kɜ is not an abbreviation for kɜw here, then it probably has the meaning "grant ka-force": nḥb.n nb tɜwj kɜ.f s.ḫpr.n ḥrw nb ꜥḥ (BM EA 1213, 8) "the one whose ka-force the Lord of the Two Lands granted, the one whom Horus, lord of the palace brought into being".
[100] §§2040a-c.
[101] §§346a-b.
[102] §§340b, 356b, 361a, 1708c, PT 696B, §11.
[103] §§893a-c, 893b-c is split, the correct order is probably jn wn zɜ rꜥ wḏɜt.f ḥḳrt.f wḏɜ pjpj pn ḥḳr pjpj pn*.
[104] I.e. the Sun.
[105] The expression jr jst is the idiom for "lay a table, grant a meal", cf. §§276c-77a: j nṯr ꜥɜ ḫmm rn.f ḫt ḥr jst n nb wꜥ j nb ɜḫt jr jst n NN pn "O elder god (i.e. the Sun) whose name is unknown, a meal on a table for the sole lord! O lord of the Behind-the-Horizon (i.e. the Sun again), lay a table for Unis!".

It is known for a long time that the word m(j)[106]  is a verb[107]. James Allen writes the following in his grammar about mj  : "The particle mj may have started out as an imperative meaning “see!” or the like; it was originally[108] followed by dependent pronouns, like an imperative, rather than the suffix forms"[109]. Indeed, in the Pyramid Text it is used with the following dependent pronouns[110], however, with the suffix pronouns[111] also:

m(j) t̲w jr.k bꜣ.tj sḫm.tj[112]
"see (i.e. realize) yourself[113] having become influential (and) powerful"[114]

m(j) kw dbn.tj šn.t(j)…m(j) kw šn.tj ꜥꜣ.tj[115]
"see yourself having become round (and) encircling…see yourself having become encircling (and) big"

jsjr(t) NN m(j) kw nḏ.tj ꜥnḫ.tj[116]
"Osiris NN, see yourself tended, (so) be alive!"

m(j) jstjrt jj.j m sꜣḥ[117]
"See Osiris came as Orion"

With the suffix pronoun as sḏm.fꜥ[118]:

m(j).k jr.k t̲w ḫpr.t(j) r.k r.f m j.mnw n smꜣ(w)[119]
"So, you shall behold yourself having become against him the most firm of wild bull(s)" m(j).k r.k sw msj.j m(j).k sw t̲ꜣz(.j) m(j).k sw ḫpr(.j)[120]

"So, you shall behold him born, you shall behold him matured, you shall behold him came into being"

m(j) also occurs in an imperative form outside the Pyramid Texts:

m(j) t̲w jj.t(j) ꜣḫ.t(j) ꜥpr.t(j) s.mn t̲w r.k m st.k tn ḫnt(j)t swt [121]

---

[106] For the spelling with D38-mj sign, see §§603d T, Leclant, *Pepi I, pl. II B, col. 66, 819c N, 887a N  (mj.k), Nt 697; 665 D, §59 P[b]; for the unique spelling {owl}{reed panicle}, see Jéquier, Pepi II, pl.19, col.1308+48
[107] Edel considered m "behold" in its various forms as a defective imperative (Edel, AG, §612-13).
[108] The author refers to the Pyramid Texts.
[109] Allen, M. E., 16.6.7, p. 189.
[110] §§45a, 162c, 629a, b, c, 1610a (m kw); 204c, 206c (m t̲w); 1492-1495a, 1864a (m sw) 333a (m NN).
[111] m.k – §§163d, 282b, 333a, 335a, 451a, 481b, 532b, 603d, 681a, 819c, 887a, 949a, 1112a-b, 1190a, 1195b, 1227b, 1681a, 1702b, 1822a, PT 663, §43, PT 665 D, §§45,59, 1966d, 2047a, 2121a, 2124a, PT 691C, §3, 2161b, 2174b, PT *738, §7, PT *752, §3, PT *762, §3, PT *806, §5; m.t̲n – §998a, b.
[112] §§204c, 206c.
[113] The descendant of this passage has sḏm.f of mj: CT I, 194e: mj.k t̲w jr.k ꜣḫ.tj bꜣ.tj sḫm.tj r nt̲rw [rsw mḥtjw].
[114] see also §162c.
[115] §§629b-c.
[116] §1610a.
[117] §819c T

[118] This is the main use of the verb mj in the Middle Kingdom – mj.k  "you shall see", mj.t̲n  "you shall see" etc.
[119] §481b.
[120] §1966d.
[121] CT VII, 237b-c.

"See yourself having come, being magical/supernatural (and) equipped (with spells), establish yourself in this your place foremost of places".

z3w ḏd.tn m(j) nj rḫ.j zp 2 jr.n.tw nn ḥr mj[122]
"Beware lest you say (i.e. don't you say!): Look, I am embarrassed (lit. I don't know twice), why was this done?"

mj wj m 3ḫ pn[123]
"Look I am this supernatural one (lit. see me as this supernatural one)"

To the instance of a sḏm.f use of the verb mj probably should be attributed the following passage from "The story of Sinuhe":

mj.(j) wj m ḫnw mj.(j) wj m st tn ntk js ḥbs 3ḫt tn[124]
"Whether I see (i.e. imagine) myself at Home or see myself in this place, you are the one whom this Behind the Horizon covers (i.e. your nature is always hidden for me)"[125]

It seems that m in the expression m ḏd NN[126]  "So NN said:/This is what NN said:" which introduces the direct speech, is actually the imperative of m(j): m(j) ḏd NN "See what NN said:" or "See NN' saying:". Cf. the verb used in sḏm.f form and in the form of an imperative in the similar expressions in the PT:

m.tn nw ḏd.n.tn ntrw tm NN pn wnn m ḫnt.tn[127]
"You shall see (i.e. recall) that which you said, gods, that this NN will not be at the head of you (lit. at your fore)"

m ḏd.k stš nj jr.n.(j) js nw jr.f[128]
"See (i.e. recall) what you said (or "your saying"), Seth: "I did not do it to him for sure (js)""

Such a proposition is also confirmed by the use of the imperative of st/sk instead of mj:

sk[129] ḏd.n.f ḫft.s j.nḏ.(j) ḥr.t jmnt nfrt m šmsw jstjr[130]
"Notice what he said (i.e. replied) to it: "I greet your face, beautiful West (goddess) in the suite of Osiris""

Here I must focus on the words with which the sentences start in Old Egyptian:

Beside the verb itself they start with:

[122] Urk.IV:365:10-11
[123] Urk.IV:547:8.
[124] Sin. B 232-233.
[125] Cf. very common mj.k tw/tw "see yourself" (traditionally read "look") and similar passage in Sin. R 65-66: mj m33 sw jdḥy m 3bw, z(j) n ḥ3t m t3-ztj "as when a Delta-man sees (i.e. imagines) himself in Elephantine, or a marsh-man in the Bowland".
[126] §§958a, 959a, 959c, 1256c, 1964d, PT *757, §6, PT *772, §8; CT I, 88-89a, 119c-d (S1C, S2C), 184f, 211e; CT II, 358e, 359e; CT IV, 101f, 102f, 104i, 105b, 286-87d;
[127] §998a. Cf. also CT VI, 174g: mj.k ḏd.n.j n.k "May you see what I have said to you".
[128] §958a
[129] Other sarcophagi have prefixed forms j.sk and j.st
[130] CT I, 119c-d, S1C, S2C have m ḏd.f ḫft.s "See what he said (i.e. replied) to it:…".

a) wn  "be", often in the sense "truth", emphasizing that the action existed, i.e. did take place.

(n wꜣš bꜣw NN r nṯrw nb) n wnn ḫpr ḫt nb ḫft ḥw wḏ kꜣ.f[131]
"(because (more) esteemed is the influence of NN than any gods), because existent is (the fact that) everything happens according to the Will/Volition his ka expresses (lit. commands)"

Lit. "because –everything happens according to the Will his ka expresses– exists", i.e. is truth/real[132].

b) ḫr  [133] and the j-prefixed form j.ḫr  [134]

The {falling man} determinative and prefix give no doubt that ḫr and j.ḫr is a verb "to fall". Its meaning as a beginning verb – to diversify the narration – seems to be "to befall, to happen"[135]:

j.ḫr ḥz sw ḥm.f ḥr ḫt[136]
"(And) happened that His Person praised him on account of the deed (lit. thing)"

Literally: "Fallen has that His Person praised him on account of the thing".

3)  gr and the j-prefixed form j.gr –

The prefixed form gives no doubt that gr and j.gr is a verb, most probably "be silent, be still" (i.e. be attentive, get ready).

In the form of the imperative for emphasizing:

jw ḥm(w)-kꜣ ḏt(.j) pn ḥnꜥ msw.sn ḥnꜥ j.gr msw nw msw.sn mswt.sn sn ḏt […][137]
"My personal funerary priests together with their children and even their children's children forever […]"

Literally: "Ka-serfs of this my person together with their children together with, be silent/still (i.e. attentive), their children's children forever […]"

---

[131] Urk.I:109:10-11.

[132] It must also be noticed here that wnnt  is not a particle, cf. jnk wnnt mry.n jt(j).f ḥzy.n mjwt.f (Urk.I:109:18), literally it reads: "I am existing whom his father loves, whom his mother blessed" --- the thing is that we have the same use of the participle of the verb "exist" in Russian, e.g. about a difficult child one can say: "On -- sushee nakazanie" which is "He is a proper terror (lit. punishment)", where "sush'ee" is literally a participle "existing, being". What I mean is that wnnt in the passage is still a participle "being, existing", while its meaning is exactly like in Russian --- proper, real, authentic, i.e. the passage means: "I am really whom his father loves, whom his mother blessed".

[133] Urk.I:65:6

[134] Urk.I:41:9, 12, 16; 53:1;

[135] Cf. the Middle Egyptian expression (jr) ḫr m-ḫt (e.g. Westcar 8,5-6) "(As to) happened next:…", literally "(As to) (be)fell in the wake:…". As a variant of this in the Middle Egyptian a sḏm.n.f form of the verb ḥꜥ "stand up" – ḥꜥ.n  used with the same meaning – "And happened", literally "And stood up".

[136] Urk.I:53:1.

[137] Urk.I:36:5-7.

Cf. the similar use of the imperative of st below. This verb is absent in the Pyramid Texts which probably means that its meaning can be covered by the verb ḥm which occurs in the PT.

The form of  which late Old Kingdom and Middle Kingdom inscriptions tend to use instead of gr seems to be either the same phenomenon as the occurrence of nj wnt  instead of nj wn  both meaning "there is no", literally "Is not that exist", jnk wnnt  [138] instead of jnk wn  [139] both meaning "I am indeed/authentic (lit. existing)…", cf. also a special form of the verb jnj "bring, fetch" – jnt  which is sometimes used instead of regular jn  in sḏm.f OR and it seems more probable  stands for gr.t(j) – 2mfs stative, "(you) be silent!" just like on the stelae Toledo 47.61, 2-3[140]

4) sk/st  , prefixed forms j.st/j.sk  and use of the following dependent pronoun  st w(j),  st sw, give no doubt that this is a 2-lit. verb, the one used as a variant of mj "see, look"[141], i.e. the most probably "notice", hence "notice me", "notice him".

A simple comparison of the two constructions shows total similarity:

sk sw ḫp.(j) r jmnt[142]
"Notice him went to the West"

m(j) sw jj.j[143]
"Look him come"

sk tw ḫr.t m nswt-bjt(j) dt[144]

---

[138] Urk.I:109:18.
[139] Urk.I:217:7, 9.
[140]  mdw r ḫrw.f pr.t gr.t*(j) hrw n zḥ ꜣ*
"He who speaks at the top of (lit. according to) his voice (while) the elite is silent on the day of big counsil".
[141] The Old Egyptian doesn't use mj, it uses st instead, mj in the Old Egyptian occurs exclusively in the Pyramid Texts, while in the Middle Egyptian mj is used more often than any other verbs of attracting attention. It is noteworthy that both verbs (mj and st) are often used with the following stative, attracting attention to the state in which person/something was/is or will be.
[142] Urk.I:9:15
[143] §§1492-1495a, 1864a.
[144] Urk.I:159:11.

"Notice (i.e. realize) yourself having shone forth as a Southern (and) Northern King forever"

This verb was used almost exclusively in the form of the imperative to introduce either main sentence (rare) or the circumstance of the action in the main clause (very often):

j.ḫr sk ḥm.f ḥz.f sw ḥr.s[145]
"(And be)fell, notice His Person, he praised him for it"[146] jn z3.f...jr n.f nw sk sw ḳrs(.j) m jmnt nfrt ḫft ḏdt.n.f jm sk sw [ꜥ]nḫ(.j) ḥr rdwj.f[147]

"It is his son...who made/did it to him when he was (already) buried in the beautiful West according to what he (the son) told (promised) when he was alive (and stand) on his legs"

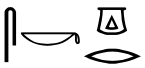

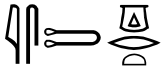

In English we have it as "when he was buried" and "when he was alive" while in Egyptian it is "notice him being buried" and "notice him being alive".

jr spr.k tA r Xnw sk dng pw m a.k anx(.j) wDA(.j) snb(.j)[148]
«When (lit. as to) you will land to the (Nile Valley's) Interior, notice (i.e. watch, be sure) this dwarf with you (lit. in your hand) is alive, sound (and) healthy.

In the Pyramid Text the imperative j.sṯ is used to emphasize additional object and has the meaning "and even":

ḏj.ṯ šꜥt.f m jrtj 3ḫw nb m33tj.sn n.f sḏmt.f nb rn.f j.sṯ [149]
"you shall inspire (lit. give) the veneration of him (lit. his) in the eyes of all the magicians who will look at him, and even all those who will hear his name"

Literally: "…(and) all those who will hear his name, notice (it)"

Sometimes two verbs are combined, e.g. sk gr  later j.sṯ grt  "Notice, be silent", also sk ḥm[150]  "Notice, be attentive", which was a way to say "be specially attentive":

*sk gr sr jmj st-*ꜥ nb nfr n jrr.f ḫt ḫft mdt nt wḏ pn[151]
"Notice, be silent, any official (and) functionary who will not do thing(s) according to the speech of this decree".

j.sṯ grt rdj.n ḥm.j jrt twt n ḥm.j ḥr t3š pn n mrwt rwḏ.ṯn ḥr.f n mrwt ꜥ*ḥ3.ṯn ḥr.f*[152]
"Notice, be silent, My Person ordered making an image of My Person on this border in order that you stand up (lit. grow stronger) for it, in order that you fight for it"

On occasion the person whose attention is attracted is written as in the following passage:

---

[145] Urk.I:41:12.
[146] More declamatory than just "His Person praised him for it".
[147] Urk.I:8:14-17
[148] Urk.I:130:17
[149] §53a-b.
[150] Urk.IV:262:1, also 260:7 (sk…ḥm).
[151] Urk.I:283:12
[152] stBerlin 1157 = Khartoum 451.

NN ḏs.f jwnw msjj m jwnw sk rˁ ḥr dp NN psḏtj ḥr tp rḫwt nfr tm jwt snnw.f jwˁw jt.f gbb[153]
"NN himself is a Heliopolitan, born in Heliopolis, notice (it), Sun, NN is at the head of the Dual Ennead (and) at the head of the people–rekhit, Nefertem without peer, heir of his father Geb"[154]

5) ḥm[155]  [156] in the Middle Kingdom it has the {striking man} determinative  . It seems that this is also a verb with the meaning similar to the verbs above, probably "be attentive/listen" or maybe even "learn"[157]. Just like other verbs it is exclusively used in the form of an imperative:

jr.n ṯw ḥm nṯr r st-jb nt jzjz[158]
"A god has indeed made you for the liking/pleasure (lit. the place of the heart) of Isesi"

Literally "Made you, be attentive/listen, a god to the liking of Isesi"

In the Pyramid Text this verb is often used in combination with nj "is/was not"[159]  to emphasize negation:

nj ḥm fḫtj.n.k nj ḥm jꜣbtj.n.k [160]
"there is indeed nothing you have lost, there is indeed nothing you have missed"

Literally "there is, be attentive/learn (it), nothing you have lost, there is, be attentive/learn (it), nothing you have missed"[161]

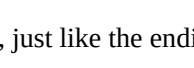

mj.k ḥm ˁꜣ.k ḥr wn(m) jtj.j[162]
"And look, your donkey is eating my grain!", literally "You shall see, be attentive, your donkey is eating my grain!"

6) jw  used among all these verbs can not be non-verbal. It seems that jw has the same meaning as the verb wn, i.e. "be, exist". In the following passage it seems to be used as an active participle

t wˁb pw n jstjr/jnpw jw n zjz jmꜣḫw[163]
"this is the clean bread of Osiris/Anubis which is/existing (jw) for Sise–nourished one"

All these shows that Egyptian language and syntax of Egyptian sentence can not be analyzed through the prism of our languages because it inevitably leads to misunderstanding of grammar and syntax.

---

[153] §§483a-c P.
[154] Lit. "…notice, Sun, NN's head is above (that of) Dual Ennead, (he is) above-headed of people-rekhit…".
[155] There is no prefixed forms, which may mean that the verb belongs to 3rd inf. class rather than 2 lit.
[156] Urk.I:61:9, 70:15, 71:3 etc.
[157] However the list of possible meanings may be wider, it is also possible that the meaning is "understand, remember" etc.
[158] Urk.I:63:4
[159] It seems that nj is not a particle, in the Old Kingdom it is sometimes spelled  with double j, just like the endings of verbs, and, moreover, the form  probably represents geminated form of nj.
[160] §206b.
[161] gr is used similarly outside the PT: nj gr rḏj.n ḥm.(j) pr jp(w)t(j) n sr nb r [jꜣt] nb nt pr mnw (Urk.I:283:8) "My Person doesn't let (lit. give) a messenger of any official to ascend to the [mound] of the House of Min", lit. "Is not, be silent, that My Person has given that a messenger of any official ascend to the [mound] of the House of Min".
[162] Peas. R 9, 5–6.
[163] Kanawati-Hassan, Ankhmahor, pl. 44, 49. Probably must be read so, rather than to emend jw.f n zjz*.

As a result of such an approach we have a number of false particles in the dictionaries and grammars which, as has been shown above and will be shown below, are actually verbs.

5) wdnt

mdw pt sdȝ tȝ ȝgbgb nṯrw jwnw ḥr ḫrw wdnt dp-ꜥwj pjpj [164]
"The sky is speaking, the earth is shaking, the gods of Heliopolis are moving/dancing, at the sound of the wdnt before Pepi"

The main question of the passage lays in the expression ḥr ḫrw wdnt "at the sound of wdnt"[165]. The word wdnt otherwise occurs exclusively in the expression sḳ wdnt, which in the PT follows another expression – ḫbs tȝ "dig out the ground"[166] –  .

wdnt is not a food offering, as all food offerings or meals have a special {tall bread loaf, beer jug, flat and round bread loaf} determinative in the Pyramid Texts and in the private Old Kingdom tombs –  [167]. Thus the sḳ wdnt expression should not be compared with, e.g. sḳ(j)/sḳr t ḥḏ "lay down a white bread"[168] because wdnt as offering/food is unknown[169].

The same verb sḳ(j) is used in the expression sḳ(j) bnt or sḳ(j) m bnt "play on the harp", and sḳr bḏwj/ḥmwj, skj ḥȝm "beat a gong":

jst pw ḥnꜥ nbt-ḥwt {j}m sḳr n.k bḏwj/ḥmwj m-bȝḥ nṯrw[170]
"This is Isis with Nephthys as the beaters of the gong for you before the gods"

Cf. sḳ(j) wdnt dp-ꜥwj NN of the current passage with sḳr bḏwj/ḥmwj m-bȝḥ nṯrw "beat a gong before the gods".

sḏm.f sḳr n.f m ḥmwj[171]

---

[164] §§1110a-b.
[165] Harold Hays in his dissertation also wondered at a problem of reading wdnt (at least in the current passage) and read ḥr ḫrw wdnt in this passage as "at the sound of the litany" (Hays, Structure, p.287, note 274), giving the reference on the reading of wdnt to the work of Siegfried Schott, "Eine agyptische Bezeighnung für Litaneien" in Ägyptologische Studien (Hermann Grapow zur 70. Geburtstag gewidmet), edited by O. Firchow. Berlin: Akademie-Verlag, pp.289-295.
[166] §§817a, 862c, 978c, 1120c, 1138a, 1323c, 1326a, 1394b, 1561c, PT *716, §5.
[167] cf. wȝḥt (§101c), pḥr (§818a), wdḥw (§696a), jḫt/ḫt (§§558b, 559c, 707d), jštt (§§121c, 717b), hmt (§334b), ḥtp nṯr (§772b), wnmt (§1784d), ꜥȝbt (§§130c, 310b, 880d), bꜥḥt (§§555b, 1877b), ḫfȝt (§880d), snt (§716a), ḏnjt (§716b), jꜥw (§716a), st (§§120a, 123f), ḥtp (§130b), šb(w) (§290d T), mswt (§§291a, 716b), prt-ḫrw (§1649a), moreover, swḥ (Hassan, Giza II, fig.137.1; Steindorff, Ti, Tf. 112 (transposed in the original as sḥw)), dbḥt ḥtp (Steindorff, Ti, Tf. 109, 135), wḏb rd (Altenmuller, SAK 1974, p.15).
[168] Wb.IV:307:9.
[169] The Old Kingdom inscriptions usually use different word-formations to express the notion of laying down the offering meal: wdn ḫt "present/lay down a meal" (Hannig, ÄR, p. 392-393) and wȝḥ ḫt "lay down a meal" (Simpson, Qar and Idu, fig. 22)/wȝḥ n.f (Hassan, Giza I, fig. 136, 142), cf. Urk.IV:430:11: pr.f ḥr njs wȝḥ ḫt m jz.j n ḫr(j)-nṯr "he will go forth to a call of the depositor of meal in my tomb of the necropolis". If wdnt is somehow a kind of an offering, then we need to see any action with it or an actor, but the discussed passage has none; wdnt is used with the verb sḳ(j)/sḳr in the Pyramid and Coffin Texts, so in our case it could be ḥr ḫrw sḳ(j) wdnt* "at the voice of the depositor of the wdnt" to make sense, cf. OIP 102, plate 8 and 10A: dj.f prt m bȝ ꜥnḫy ḥr ḫrw n wȝḥ ḫt n kȝ n NN "he gives: the emerging as a living ba at the voice of the depositor of meal for the ka of NN".
[170] CT I, 74f-g.

"He hears a beating for him on the gong"

sḳj ḥ3m[172]
"beat a gong" ("playing bell" – according to Naville)

Moreover, in §1110a-b the gods are probably "moving, dancing" (3gbgb ~ 3ḫbḫb) at the sound of the wdnt. This all suggests that wdnt could be a kind of musical instrument, such as a gong or a harp.

However, our attention must be focused more on the whole expression which includes preceding ḫbs t3 and the usual call that follows the whole expression – to go and reach some destination. In the passage of §§1394a-b sḳ wdnt occurs with following sḳ t3 tbj "pounding the land of Tebi" which probably suggests, as well as using of the verb sḳ, that wdnt is a kind of means of reaching a destination and the expression is synonymous to sḳ rdw "pound/flat a mound/stairway", i.e. probably "pound a slope" which does make sense in the context:

ḏ(d)-mdw ḫbs t3 jn ḥnn sḳ wdnt sḳ t3 tbj…j.h3.f m t3[173]
"Recitation: the ground has been dug out by a hoe, the slope has been pounded, Tebi's land has been pounded…that he may descend into the ground"

ḫbs n.k t3 sḳ n.k wdnt dpj ꜥwj.k j.šm.k ḥr w3t tf j.šmt nṯrw jm.s[174]
"the earth has been dug out for you, the slope has been pounded for you, that you may go on this way on which gods go"

The expression sḳ(j) wdnt also occurs in the Coffin Texts, three of four passages have ḫbs t3 preceding:

j.zj m ḥtp jsjr(t) NN pn j.zj m ḥtp ḫbs.t(w) n.k t3 sḳr.t(w) n.k wdnt jr.t(w) n.k ḫt ḫ3w m ḫm[175]
"Go in peace, this Osiris NN! Go in peace! The ground has been dug up for you, a slope has been pounded for you, evening meal has been made for you in Letopolis" ḫ3 n.j ꜥntjw k3p n.j snṯr ḫbs n.j t3 sḳr n.j wdnt dp-ꜥwj 3st ḥnꜥ nbt-ḥwt[176]

"Myrrh has been pulverized (?) for me, incense censed for me, the ground dug up for me, a slope pounded for me before Isis and Nephthys"

h3 jstjr NN m(j) r.k m3.k jsjt ḫbs.t(w) n.k t3 sḳr.t(w) n.k wdnt jr.t(w) n.k z3 t3[177]
"Greetings, Osiris N, come and see Osiris, the ground has been dug up for you, a slope has been pounded for you, homage (lit. guarding the ground[178]) has been done to you"

rdj n.f j3(w) sḳ(j) n.f wdnt jn jmjw pr wr[179]
"Praise has been given to him, a slope has been pounded for him by those in the Great house (shrine)"

The suggested reading of wdnt probably indicates that in the passage with which the present author started this item the verb sḳ was omitted:

---

[171] CT I, 248b.
[172] Naville, Deir el Bahari IV, pl. 100.
[173] §§1394a-b
[174] §§817a-b.
[175] CT V, 292c-d.
[176] CT II, 49b-d.
[177] CT VI, 158g-j.
[178] The image is a body prostrated (guarding) (on) the ground as a gesture of homage.
[179] CT VII, 193n-o.

mdw pt sḏ3 t3 3gbgb nṯrw jwnw ḥr ḫrw wdnt dp-ʿwj pjpj
"The sky is speaking, the earth is shaking, the gods of Heliopolis are moving/dancing, at the sound of (pounding) the slope before Pepi"

From the standpoint of the conclusion of the meaning of wdnt, the present author would like to draw your attention to another passage where the meaning of the word is not well-defined:

sḳ d3t(j) dt.k jr bw ḫrj s3ḥ[180]
"The he of Duat has sḳ your dt to the place where Orion is"

All the researchers of the Pyramid Text read the passage similarly: "The Dȝ.t strikes (takes) thy hand, towards the place of Śȝḥ" (Mercer)[181], "The Netherworld has grasped your hand at the place where Orion is" (Faulkner)[182], "The Duat shall lay down your hand toward the place where Orion is" (Allen)[183].

However, firstly, it seems that d3t in the passage is a nisba – d3t(j) "He of Duat", the reference to ḥrw d3tj "Horus of Duat"[184], secondly, the word ḏrt "hand" is never spelled  while singular, its usual spelling in the PT while singular is  [185] or  [186]. Moreover in the text the hand is usually taken (šzp, §1561b), but never struck (sḳ), it means that dt can not be at all the spelling of ḏrt "hand".

The variants of this passage show that not hand is meant, but the means of reaching the sky: PT 610, §1717a: sḳ n.k rdw jr d3t jr bw nt(j) s3ḥ jm "pounded is for you the mound to Duat (i.e. the night sky), to the place where Orion is", PT *735, §10: s[ḳ n].k w3t jr d3t jr bw ḫrj s3ḥ "[pounded for] you is the way to Duat, to the place where Orion is". It seems that dt is the synonym or a short spelling of the word wdnt "slope" for both words are pounded (sḳ) to reach the sky, and the both words probably have the meaning "that which is laid down/put".

6) the meaning of the words snt  and ḏnjt

In the second item of this paper we already encountered fdt "the four-day service/period" and ḫnmt "the four-day service/period" of §§746b-c, which refers to the 8 days during which the unburied Osiris was rotting[187]. Similar periods occur in the CT:

---

[180] §802c.
[181] Mercer, PT, p. 150
[182] Faulkner, PT, p. 144
[183] Allen, PT, p. 105
[184] i.e. the night luminary incarnated in the stars, read below.
[185] §§537c, 539b, 960c MN, 1371b, 1374c, 2067a.
[186] §§338b, 960c P. Also a variant spelling ḏ3t –  (§§124d, g, 1703d). The only real exception is the spelling d-t- {stick} of §1561b, notice, however, the presence of the {stick} determinative which is absent in three (!) copies of the discussed passage. Also, the other exceptions are (false) plural and dual forms, first spelled d-d-d-t (§§743d, 1008b), second – d-d-t (§§1405b (in the copy of N however there is the {stick} det), 2159c (there is  determinative)).
[187] It is noteworthy that there were 4 and 8 vessels for purification (§§) – according to the number of 8 "dirty" days of Osiris, when he was rotting dismembered (§1284b) and unburied.

hrw snt[188] "the (6th/last) day of the six-day service/period", hrw pw n fdt[189] "this is the (4th/last) day of four-day service/period", hrw pw n ḫnmt[190] "this is the (8th/last) day of eight-day service/period".

Such a reading, i.e. by periods, not by definite days (5th, 6th etc.) is confirmed by the variant of §§746b-c – §§1978c-d[191] which, unlike §§746b-c, has ordinal numbers fdnw.f hrw "his fourth day" and ḫmnnw.f h[rw] "his eighth day", i.e. the different spelling: jfdt.f ḫmnt.f VS fdnw.f hrw ḫmnnw.f h[rw].

Thus the reading of §§716a-b is actually:

sk snt n jʿw tjt ḏnjt n mswt tjt
"Notice, the six-day service meal is for Teti's breakfast, the seven-day service meal is for Teti's supper".

Cf. also the following passage jw nw pn bkꜣ nw n djn nw n snt nw n ḏnjt nw n ḫmnt[192]

"Will pass the time of tomorrow, (then) time of five-days service, (then) time of six-days service, (then) time of seven-days service, (then) time of eight-days service ((and) Teti will be called by the Sun, he will be given a meal by Sustenance-Granter, authentically Horus, authentically He of the Behind-the-Horizon)"[193]

Related to the discussed are the numbers of vessels[194] for Osiris' purification mentioned in the PT. It seems that the number of these vessels is bigger than in the accepted readings, probably one or two vessels for each day, i.e. 8 or 16, because the text says about fd(w)t jpwt/jptwt[195] "these (2 or 4) four(somes)", and in §2012c ḫmnt nmswt "eight vases" and ḫmnt ʿꜣbwt "eight bellied jugs" are mentioned, cf. also:

fdt.k jptw nmswt ʿꜣbwt[196] "these your foursomes of vases (and) bellied jugs"

fdt.k nmswt fdt.k ʿꜣbwt[197] "your foursome of vases (and) your foursome of bellied jugs" fdt.k nmswt jpwt špnt ʿꜣbt[198] "your foursome of these vases narrow (and) bellied"

---

[188] CT I, 205e
[189] CT IV, 372b.
[190] CT IV, 373b.
[191] fd.n.f ḏwt [jrt] NN pn m fdnw.f hrw ḫm.n.f jrt jr.f m ḫmnnw.f h[rw] "He has torn out the bad [repugnant to] this NN in his fourth day, he has committed to oblivion (by amending) what was done to (lit. against) him in his eighth day", for the implied word-play, see item # 2.
[192] §§345a-b
[193] §§346a-b. This is a reference to the 9th day – the day of burial and resurrection.
[194] nmswt "vases" and ʿꜣbwt "bellied jugs (lit. abundant jugs)" are mentioned.
[195] §§1116b, 1140a, 1164b, 1180c, 1733a, PT 663, §14, 1902b, PT 700, §4.
[196] §1164b
[197] §1293b
[198] §1365a–b

7)

ꜣḫ  This item is about allocating of shades of word's meaning which helps to make readable translation. The meaning "be magical/supernatural" is suggested for ꜣḫ and is explained below.

No doubt that the root of the word ꜣḫ as a reference to a dead is ꜣḫ "be effective/good/useful"[199]. However while reading texts this word is usually left untranslated because literal "effective one", "good one" or "useful one" can not convey the meaning of this term. The question is if we are to translate it, which word conveys its meaning the best? James Allen in his grammar almost gave an answer to this question:

"The link between the creator's idea of the world and its actual creation lies in the first sentence of this text: "I made my body evolve through my effectiveness"[200]. The term  ꜣḫw "effectiveness"[201] is an abstract noun related to the adjective ꜣḫ "effective." This quality is often associated with intellectual activity or speech: an Egyptian official might say, for example, jnk jḳr sḫr ꜣḫ n njwt.f (Siut III, 4) "I am one excellent of advice, effective for his town," or he might describe himself as ꜣḫ ḏd ḥr jb n nb.f (CG 20539 IIb, 5) "effective of speech on the heart of his lord" (i.e., in his lord's opinion)[202].

The quality of "effectiveness" is also closely related to the concept of  ḥkꜣ "magic" (often plural  ḥkꜣw "magic spells, magic acts"). In ancient Egypt, "magic" meant essentially the ability to make things happen by indirect means. It was seen as a natural phenomenon, and like other such phenomena was also viewed as a god. Magic could involve physical means, such as the use of amulets or images to ward off evil, but most often it was associated with the power of creative speech: that is, speech that is "effective" enough to cause a desired result. The expressions "recite by magic" (šdj m ḥkꜣw) and "speak with effectiveness" (ḏd m ꜣḫw) are often used together, as different ways of saying the same thing."[203]

Indeed, terms ꜣḫ and ḥkꜣ are closely related, and it will be clear below.

A coming of a deceased is often described in CT and BD as effective and equipped:

ḏd.n.k jj.t ꜣḫ.t ꜥpr.t j jn sꜣḥ r.j[204]
"'You have spoken (truly), welcome, effective (and) equipped' – says Orion to me"

j.n.k js ꜣḫ.t ꜥpr.t[205]
"You have come authentically effective (and) equipped"

---

[199] I do not consider the version of an akh as "light one" which is based on the suggestion that the term shares the same root with the word jAxw "sunlight". I suppose that jAxw "sunlight" derives from the root Ax "be(come) full", i. e. is a paronym to such word as s.AxAx "flood" (Pyr. §1214a), jAxj "be(come) full-watered", wAxj "become sated, become full" and AxAx "stars, starry sky" ("flood of stars" after Allen, The Ancient Egyptian Pyramid Texts, Nt 249, p. 327), hence jAxw "sunlight" literally is something like "flood of light" or "that which floods".

[200] CT VI, 344b.

[201] It is noteworthy that this word could also have A2 det. –  (Sethy I, Abydos III, pl. 38) just like (Westcar 8, 20).

[202] Similar expression: jnk sꜥḥ ꜣḫ n nb.f (Urk.IV:118:3) "I am an official, effective/good/useful for his lord"

[203] Allen, M. E., Essay 13, p. 160 (2nd ed.).

[204] CT V, 394l-m

[205] CT V, 397m

Sometimes a coming/returning from the Island of Blazing, which seems to be a designation for the earth (?)[206], is described similarly. Some passages describe such a coming as the coming/returning with a belly full of magic which makes sure that the returning  ꜣḫ ḫpr means "being magical/supernatural" and "equipped (with magic or spells)":

dj n.ṯ s m-ḫnw ḫwj.ṯ ḏr wnt.s j.t(j) ꜣḫ.t(j) ḫpr.t(j) m jw nsrsr[207]
"Hug her (lit. give her inside your arms) since she is come/returned having become supernatural (and) equipped (with spells) from the Island of Blazing"

j.n.f nḏ.f ḥr.ṯ (var. j.n.f mjn) m jw ns(r)sr dr.n.f ḫmw.f r.f mḥ.n.f ḫt.f m ḥkꜣw[208]
"He has come to greet you (var. He has come today) from the Island of Blazing, (after) he has got rid of his marks of decay[209] (and) filled his belly with magic"

jww mḥ ḫt.sn m ḥkꜣw m jw nsjsj[210]
"Those who come with their belly filled with magic from the Island of Blazing"

In one text the queen Hatshepsut' state is described as ꜣḫ.t m ḥkꜣw.ṯ wsr.t m pḥt.ṯ[211] "you are effective (i.e. supernatural) through your magic, you are vigorous through your (physical) strength" – in this passage ꜣḫ and wsr precisely define nouns ḥkꜣw and pḥt as "supernatural" and "strong". In another text it is said about the queen that ꜣḫ.s m nṯr[212] "she is effective (i.e. supernatural) as a god".

According to the usual view on the term ꜣḫ it designated the status or form of being achieved only in the afterlife. However there is a presumption that it may be a designation for alive person(s) also, which is obvious because its literal meaning is "effective one" or "good/useful one", sometimes with more precise meaning "magician". In the following passage it seems that alive person, lector-priest is identified as ꜣḫ ḫpr, i.e. "equipped magician":

[jr] ḫr(j) ḥ(ꜣ)b(t) jḳr ꜣḫ ḫpr šdt.f n z(j) nb pr<t>.f ḫrw n(.j)[213]

"[As] to a skilled lector-priest, a magician (ꜣḫ) equipped (with spells)[214] who will recite for me (and) anyone who will offer (lit. send the voice) for me"

In another passage ꜣḫw seems to designate people who are "effective/good", i.e. "righteous":

[jw.(j) t (j)ṯt ṯꜣz].f mj ꜣpd dj.j snḏ.(j) jm.f r mꜣꜣ ꜣḫw dpjw-tꜣ snḏ.sn n ꜣḫ jḳr[215]

---

[206] Another designation for the Island of Blazing is tꜣ n ḫnḥ/tꜣ ḫnḥ "the land of life " (cf. CT I, 88-89b, 137b and ibid 117b-18a; CT spells 39-40, CT IV, 378c); one text also speaks about people who are in the Island of Blazing (CT I, 365c-367a, M5C).
[207] CT I, 141d-e B3Bo
[208] CT I, 117b-18a.
[209] Lit. "having removed his marks of decay from him". The literal meaning of ḫmw is probably "dryness" – probably the metaphor for decay in arid climate. Cf. the following ḥtm.n.f jbt.f jm ḥtm.n.f wršw.f jm mj ꜣpd (CT I, 118b-d) "with which (i.e. magic) he annihilated his thirst, with which he annihilated his (mid)day's aridness like a bird". The word wšrw usually read "watchers" is probably rather a reference to dry state of a deceased just like previous ḫmw and jbt, such a proposition is also confirmed by the absence of the determinative of a human being or the like after wršw.
[210] §397b-c.
[211] Urk.IV:255:16-17
[212] Urk.IV:246:5
[213] Urk.I:197:17.
[214] Cf. ibid:224:7: jnk ꜣḫ ḫpr r ꜣḫ[…]
[215] Kanawati-Hassan, Ankhmahor, pl. 35 ~ Urk.I:202:6-8.

[216]"[I will have to seize] his [neck] like (that of) a bird that I may put the fear of me (lit. my fear) in him, so that the good ones on the earth see (it) and that they fear the skilled supernatural"

Theoretically it is possible to read "supernatural ones (and) those on the earth", however it seems that dpjw-t3 is a modifier of 3ḫw, just like in the expression ꜥnḫw dpjw-t3[217]  "the living upon the earth".

It seems that 3ḫw dpjw-t3 "earthly akhs" are opposite to the ones labeled 3ḫw m ḫr(j)-nṯr [218] "akhs in the necropolis", 3ḫw jmjw jmnt [219]"akhs who are in the West", 3ḫ nt(j) ḫp(.j) r ḫr(j)-nṯr[220] "an akh went to the necropolis" and 3ḫ nt(j) m ḫr(j)-nṯr[221] "an akh who is in the necropolis".

It is noteworthy that in similar inscriptions instead of 3ḫw dpjw-t3 are used ꜥnḫw nb dp t3 and dpjw.sn t3:

jw(.j) <r> jṯt ṯ3z.f mj 3pd jw(.j) r rḏt snḏ ꜥnḫw nb dp t3 n 3ḫw jmjw jmnt[222]
"I will have to seize his neck like (that of) a bird. I will have to make (lit. give) all the living on the earth fear the supernatural ones who are in the west" djj.n(.j) snḏ(.j) jm.f r m33 dpjw.sn t3 snḏ.sn n 3ḫ[223]

"I will have put a fear of mine into him so that their survivors see (it) and that they fear a supernatural one"

As to an akh being a reference to an alive person is a matter of further research and debate, the present author would like to one more time emphasize the nature of 3ḫ as a reference to magic/supernaturality.

3ḫw are sometimes labeled as rḫw r.sn "those who know their spell(s)" and 3ḫ as rḫ r.f "who knows his spell(s)" which coincides with the same designation for ḫr(j)-ḥ3bt "possessor of scroll with spells"[224] and ḥk3w "magic":

3ḫ:

3ḫw m r.sn ꜥpr[225]
"the supernatural ones equipped with their spell(s)"

jnk 3ḫ jḳr rḫ r.f[226]

---

[216] it is preceded by – Kanawati-Hassan, Ankhmahor, pl. 35 ~ Urk. I:202:3-5: [jr r(m)ṯ] nb ꜥḳtj.sn r jz(.j) pn m ꜥb.sn wnm.sn bwwt [bw]t n 3ḫ jḳr nj wꜥb.sn n(.j) mj wꜥb.sn n n 3ḫ jḳr jrr ḥzzt nb.f "[As for] any [people] who will enter this my tomb in their (state of) [impur]ity, having eaten abominations which a skilled supernatural abominates, who have not become clean for me like they should become clean for a skilled supernatural who did what his lord praised".
[217] Urk.I:75:8, 112:5, 122:9, 147:9, 197:11, 218:7, 252:2, 255:9, 268:11
[218] Urk.I:305:6, 17
[219] Urk.I:260:18
[220] Urk.I:173:12, 18, Myśliwiec, Merefnebef, facade lintel (line 3, 4)
[221] Kanawati-Raziq, Hesi, pl.59
[222] Urk.I:260:16-18.
[223] Myśliwiec, Merefnebef, façade inscription.
[224] Lit. "he who is under the festival/service scroll".
[225] §930a, cf. §§930a-31d. The prepositional phrase m r.sn "with their spell(s)" was put before the adjective ꜥpr "experienced, equipped", though it should be after the adjective, as the preposition m is the governing preposition of ꜥpr, ꜥpr m being the collocation "experienced in" or "equipped with": 3ḫw ꜥpr m r.sn*. "Equipped magician" 3ḫ ꜥpr occurs in PT 627, §1771a: pjpj nfr-k3-rꜥ pw 3ḫ ꜥpr "Pepi Neferkare is an equipped magician".
[226] Junker, Giza VIII, Abb. 62, p. 134.

"I am a skilled supernatural who knows his spell(s)" ꜣḫw nbw rḫw r.sn jrt.sn ḥkꜣw.sn ḏs.sn[227]

"All the supernaturals, who know their spell(s) – are the ones who will make their magic by themselves"

ꜣḫ ꜥpr ḥkꜣ r r(m)ṯ nb[228]
"a supernatural one who acquired/gained magic against (i.e. more than) any men"

mswt jtw.sn j.rḫw r.sn j.ḫmw-sk[229] and ꜣḫw j.ḫmw-sk[230]
"progeny of their fathers, who know their spell(s), unperishing (stars)" and "magicians–unperishing (stars)"

ḫr(j)-ḥꜣbt [231]:

jnk ꜣḫ ꜥpr jnk [ḫr(j)] ḥ[(ꜣ)b(t)][232]
"I am an equipped magician, I am a lec[tor priest]" jnk ꜣḫ jḳr ꜥpr ḫr(j) ḥ(ꜣ)b(t) rḫ r.f[233]

"I am a skilled (and) equipped magician, a lector-priest who knows his spell(s)" ḥkꜣw:

ꜥmjꜣt…hꜣbt nṯrw…m ḫsfw msw.sn ḥkꜣw(w) rḫ rw.sn r jṯ ḥkꜣ.sn r nḥm ꜣḫw.sn[234]
"Throwing-stick…which the gods send…to meet/towards their children–magicians who know their spells, to take away their magic (and) seize their supernaturality"

Being an akh is associated with learning magic:

jnk ꜣḫ jḳr ꜥpr jw rḫ.n.j ḥkꜣ nb štꜣ n ḫnw[235]
"I am a skilled supernatural for I have learnt every secret ḥkꜣ-magic of the Interior"

jnk ꜣḫ jḳr jw rḫ.k(j) ꜣḫt(.j) nb(t) n m ḫr(j)-nṯr[236]
"I am a skilled supernatural for I have learnt every(thing) because of which I have become supernatural in the necropolis" jnk ḫr(j)-ḥ(ꜣ)b(t) […] jw rḫ.k(j) ꜣḫ.(j) nbt n m ḫr(j)-nṯr[237]

---

[227] CT IV, 30g (Sq3C).
[228] Dilwyn Jones, Titles, # 4, p. 1.
[229] §141b–c
[230] §§656c, 759c etc.
[231] For a lector-priest as the synonym of "magician", see Kanawati-Hassan, Ankhmahor, pl. 42 ~ Urk.I:202:2: jnk ḫr(j) ḥ(ꜣ)b(t) jḳr rḫ [ḫ]t nj zp štꜣ ḥkꜣ nb jr(.j) jḳr "I am a skilled and learned (lit. who knows things) lector-priest: never hide any excellent magic from me (lit. there was no occasion that any excellent magic hide/was hidden from me)"; Myśliwiec, Merefnebef, facade: jnk ḫr(j) ḥ(ꜣ)b(t) jḳr rḫ […ḥ]kꜣ […] r r(m)ṯ nbw nj zp štꜣ ḥkꜣ nb r(.j) jḳr "I am a skilled lector-priest who learned […] magic […] against (i. e. more than) any men: never hide any excellent magic from me"; Urk.I:89:15-17: jnk ḫr(j) ḥ(ꜣ)b(t) [j]ḳ[r…]…rḫ.n(.j) [ḥ]kꜣ [nb štꜣ] "I am a sk[illed] lector-priest…I have learnt [every secret ma]gic".
[232] Kanawati-Raziq, Seankhuiptah, pl. 64, b.
[233] Urk.I:122:13.
[234] CT V, 252b-254c.
[235] Urk.I:143:1-2.
[236] Urk.I:218:5-6.
[237] Urk.I:256:5-6.

"I am a lector-priest […] I have learnt every(thing) because of which I have become supernatural in the necropolis" jnk ꜣḫ jḳr jw(.j) rḫ.k(j) ḥkꜣ nb ꜣḫ.(j) n.f m ḫr(j)-nṯr jw jrr.n(.j) ḫt nb(t) ꜣḫ.(j) n[238]

"I am a skilled supernatural for I have learnt every ḥkꜣ-magic because of which I have become supernatural in the necropolis. I have done everything because of which I have become supernatural"

To express the idea of being provided with food from the living, the deceased identified themselves as the jmꜣḫw "nurtured one/nurtured", while to show that they are mighty in the afterlife and can repulse any impious person, the deceased identified themselves as an akh:

jw(.j) r jṯt.s[n mj] ꜣpd jnk ꜣḫ [jḳr] mnḫ jw rḫ.k(j) […][239]
"I will have to seize them like a bird for I am a [skilled] (and) functional supernatural (and) I have learnt […]"

Akhs are identify themselves as knowledgeable persons, which is again naturally as a result of learning (rḫ) and being taught (s.ꜣḫ) to magic (ḥkꜣ):

jw gr jr n(.j) ḫt nb(t) ꜣḫ(t) špss(t) [jrrt n] jḳr jmj (ḫ)n ꜣḫw m wnwt ḫr(j) ḥꜣb(t) jw j.gr j.bz.k(j) ḥr sšꜣ n nṯr nb jw rḫ.k(j) ḫt nb(t) ꜣḫt ꜣḫ n nt(j) ḫp(.j) r ḫr(j)-nṯr m jmꜣḫw n nṯr ꜥꜣ ḫr nswt jw j.gr rḫ.k(j) ḫt nb(t) jꜥt.f (njj) n nṯr ꜥꜣ (jw gr rḫ.k(j) špsst.f njj [ḫr nṯr ꜥꜣ])[240]
"Moreover, had been performed for me everything effective (and) valuable that is performed for skilled one in the circle (lit. the interior) of supernaturals through the (service) hour of a lector-priest.
I also was introduced to every secret of the god. I know everything because of which a supernatural who has gone to the necropolis becomes (really) supernatural as nurtured one of the Elder god (and) by the king.
I also (lit. be silent[241]) know everything because of which he ascends to the Elder god (and everything because of which he is valuable by the Elder god)" jnk ꜣḫ jḳr r ꜣḫ nb jnk ꜣḫ ꜥpr r ꜣḫ nb jw rḫ.k(j) ḫt nb(t) jḳr(t) jḳrt ꜣḫ n mnḫ(t) ꜣḫt ꜣḫ n nt(j) m ḫr(j)-nṯr[242]

"I am a skilled supernatural against (i. e. more than) any (other) supernatural. I am an equipped supernatural against any (other) supernatural. I know every excellent thing because of which a supernatural becomes skilled and (every) functional (thing) because of which a supernatural who is in the necropolis becomes (really) supernatural"

jnk ꜣḫ jḳr ꜥpr{t} ḫt nb(t)[243]
"I am a skilled supernatural who gained everything"

It seems that the only thing which is significant for the deceased is if he is "magical" or "supernatural (being/person)" (ꜣḫ) or not (latter was called "dead"[244]), i. e. if he can overcome any possible difficulties of the afterlife through magic or he does not know it, hence he is a vulnerable person, "dead" person. The state of "magician" could be achieved through one's own efforts during his life (rḫ ḥkꜣ "learning magic"), with outside help (s.ꜣḫt jn ḫr(j)-ḥꜣb(t)[245] "supernaturalizing/making

[238] Urk.I:263:13-14.
[239] Urk.I:116:7-9. Cf. also the passages above [240] Myśliwiec, Merefnebef, facade lintel (line 4) + Urk.I:88:1-2, 173:15-18, Steindorff, Ti, Tf. 8.
[241] See item #4 above.
[242] Kanawati-Raziq, Hesi, pl.59.
[243] Junker, Giza VI, Abb. 82, p. 213.
[244] Cf. CT VII, 18w: nj jnk js m(w)t ḫm r.f "I am not at all a dead who does not know his spell(s)".
[245] e.g. Simpson, Mersyankh III, fig. 9.

magical[246] by the lector-priest[247]" or šdt s.ȝḫw ꜥšȝ wrt jn ḫr(j)-ḥȝb(t)[248] "recitation of very numerous supernaturalizers[249] by the lector-priest"), or through both ways.

There are passages in which ḥkȝ is used with ȝḫw, i.e. as synonyms:

wnjs pj wnm ḥkȝ.sn j.ꜥm ȝḫw.sn[250]
"Unis is the one who eats their magic and swallows their supernaturality" jw rdj.n.j [ḥkȝ(.j)] m zȝ.k ȝḫw ȝst m nḫt.k[251]

"I have given [my magic] as your protection (and) Isis' supernaturality as your strength" jw jṯt.n jstjr NN pn ȝḫw.ṯn nḥm.n jstjr N pn ḥkȝw.ṯn ȝḫw.ṯn nbw rḫw r.sn jrt.sn ḥkȝw.sn ḏs.sn[252]

"This Osiris NN has taken away your supernaturality (gods), this Osiris NN has seized your magic. All your supernaturals, who know their spell(s) – are the ones who will make their magic by themselves"

ḥkȝ.j m ḫt.j nj ꜥwȝ.t(w).f ȝḫw.j n.j[253]
"my magic is in my belly (and) it will not be stolen, my supernaturality is for me"

ꜥ*mjȝt…hȝbt nṯrw…m ḫsfw msw.sn ḥkȝw*(w) rḫ rw.sn r jṯ ḥkȝ.sn r nḥm ȝḫw.sn[254]
"Throwing-stick…which the gods send…to meet their children, magicians who know their spells, to take away their magic (and) seize their supernaturality" nḥm.n.j ḥkȝ.j nj rdj.n.j ȝḫw.j[255]

"I have saved my magic (and) I don't give (away) my supernaturality" nḥm.j wsrwt ȝḫw ḫmꜥ.n.j ȝḫw.sn j.sṯ wnm.n.j ḥkȝ.sn[256]

"I have seized napes of supernatural ones, I have grabed their supernaturality as well (and) I have eaten their magic"

ḥkȝ.j m rwd jf.j ȝḫw.j m zȝ ꜥwt.j[257]
"my magic is the strength of my flesh, my supernaturality is the protection of my limbs"

ȝḫw.ṯ n.ṯ ȝst ḥkȝ.ṯ n.ṯ ȝst[258]
"your supernaturality is for you, Isis; your magic is for you, Isis" sḫm.kw m ḥkȝ.j jp.kw m ȝḫw[259]

---

[246] It must be noted here that the literal meaning of s.ȝḫ is still "causing to be effective/good", i.e. "do much good, favour", e.g. in the following passage there is no any magical action: jnk zȝt.f n wn mȝꜥ s.ȝḫ sw [jr] šȝt.n.f (Urk.IV:368:15-17) "I am his authentic (lit. of real existence, see item # 4) daughter who favours him (and) does what he conceived/destined".
[247] also jn wt "by embalmer".
[248] Kanawati-Raziq, Hesi, pl. 64.
[249] i.e. magic-spells which make a person magical, supernatural.
[250] PT 274, §403c.
[251] CT I, 194c-d (B10Cc).
[252] CT IV, 30e-f.
[253] CT IV, 58a-c.
[254] CT V, 252b-254c.
[255] CT V, 299b-d (S14C).
[256] CT V, 391h-j (B2L).
[257] Budge II, BD64:40 (pNu, long version). Similarly ȝḫw(.j) ḥr jrt mjkt.k (Sethy I, Abydos III, pl. 38) "My ȝḫ-magic is making your protection"
[258] Budge, BD 156:1:

"I have control of my magic, I am aware (?) of (my) supernaturality"

Cf. also the expressions *ꜥpr ꜣḫw[260] and ꜥpr ḥkꜣ both having synonymous meanings "acquire supernaturality/magic":

jnk…ꜣḫ mnḫ ꜥpr ꜣḫ(w).f[261]
"I am…a mighty supernatural who acquired his supernaturality"

jnk ꜣḫ ꜥpr jw ꜥpr.n.j ꜣḫw nbw[262]
"I am an experienced (lit. equipped) supernatural, I have acquired all supernaturality"

ḥkꜣ nb ꜥpr.n.(j) sw[263]
"every (lit. any) magic which I acquired (lit. I acquired it)"

ꜣḫ ꜥpr ḥkꜣ r r(m)ṯ nb[264]
"a supernatural one who acquired (more) magic than (lit. against) any men" ꜥpr m ꜣḫw and ꜥpr m ḥkꜣw both having the synonymous meaning "equipped with magic"

mꜣꜣ.sn-nwj m nṯr ꜥpr m ꜣḫw.f[265]
"They see me as a god equipped with his supernaturality"

j.n NN pn r tꜣ ꜣḫ.(w) ꜥpr.(w) m ḥkꜣw[266]
"This NN has come from (?) the land being supernatural (and) equipped with magic"

With the suggested meaning of ꜣḫ it is easier to achieve a readable translation, e.g. of PT 473:

"He has found the supernatural ones equipped with their spell(s), who sit on the lips of Stork Lake, the drinking place of any supernatural equipped with his spell(s). "Who are you?" they say to NN, say the supernatural ones equipped with their spell(s). NN is a supernatural one equipped with [his spell(s)]. "How has this happened to you," they say to NN, say the supernatural ones equipped with their spell(s), "that you have come to this place more special than any (other) place?". NN has come to this place more special than any place (because):…"
"NN will come with you (i.e. supernatural ones) (to) and sail around with you in(to) the Marsh of Reeds, and moor with you to the Marsh of Turquoise. NN will eat of what you eat of, NN will live on what you live on, NN will be clothed in what you are clothed in, NN will be anointed with what you are anointed with, and NN will receive water with you in the Nurse Canal, the drinking place of any supernatural one equipped with his spell(s). NN will sit at the fore of the great shrine and NN will give command(s) of (i.e. just like) any supernatural one equipped with his spell(s). NN will (too) sit on the lips of Stork Lake and NN will give command(s) of (i.e. just like) any supernatural one equipped with his spell(s)."[267]

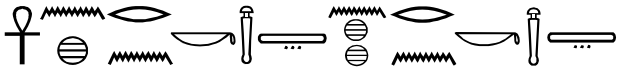

8)

---

[259] BD 72.
[260] For the examples, see Shmakov, Critical Analysis.
[261] CM JE 51733.
[262] Budge, BD124:19-20.
[263] Louvre C 14.
[264] Jones, Titles, # 4.
[265] CT IV, 133e.
[266] CT V, 304c B1Bo[a], cf. also other sarcophagi ibid. 304c-305a.
[267] §§930a-38d.

dpj t3  "survivor" as a designation/epithet of the  "name, hypostasis"

In PT §764a it is said:

ʿnḫ rn.k dpj t3 nḫḥ rn.k dpj t3
"Your identity on earth shall live, your identity on earth shall endure"

Similar statement occurs in §1372b:

nj ḏw.n.k nj ḏw.n rn.k dpj t3
"You cannot become bad, nor can your name on earth become bad"

Literally rn.k dpj t3 is "your ground/land name", "your name–survivor"

It seems that in the following passage ka-force and name are mentioned by their epithets:

ṯz ṯw r t.k pn j.ḫm ḫsḏ ḥnḳt.k j.ḫmt ʿw3/ʿm3 b3.k jm spd.k jm sḫm.k jm rḏj.k jm n m b3ḥ.k h-3 NN p 3ḫ.tj 3ḫ dpj.k t3 [268]
"Raise yourself to this your bread that does not moulder (and) your beer that does not sour, that you may become influential through them, that you may become sharp through them, that you may take control through them and give from them to the one in your presence (i.e. your ka-force) [269].
Greetings, Pepi! You have become blessed, and your survivor (i.e. your name) has become blessed".

It also seems that the victims of the reprisals inflicted by a deceased on the unfriendly persons are not "descendants–survivors", i.e. alive people, but rather names (reputations / remembrances) of the unfriendly persons; however, in the following passage it is arguable:

nḏm jb n wnjs [zp 2] wnjs pw wʿ k3 n pt jw dr.n.f jrw nn jr.f jw ḥtm.n.f dpjw.sn t3[270]
"Unis's heart is pleasant, [twice]: Unis is the Unique one, Bull of the sky, he has removed those who would dare do this against him, he has annihilated their survivors (i.e. their names ?)".

Here might work a principle that children are not responsible for their parents, thus names are annihilated.

9)

The meaning of the verbs ʿbš  and sk  .

The verbs sk (with {star} det.), ḥw and ʿbš (with {star} det.) occur in a way that suggests they share the same semantic range[271]; as meanings of these verbs are here proposed sk "light up", ḥw "proclaim" and ʿbš "kindle"[272].

---

[268] §§859a– d.
[269] Cf. §§564b, 789b-c, 1357b, where it is said about common meals of the deceased and his ka-force. Cf. also §18a-b where a deceased and his ka-force are moving near.
[270] §§293a-c.
[271] In §§1734b-d, PT 663, §§40-41, PT 665 D, §§1924-25.
[272] Similar passage, where the verbs sk and ʿbš are also used, occurs in PT 700, §§2186a-86b […] skj ḫftjw.k sk sn ʿbš sn jr.k d

šwj.k r.k jr jrt rᶜ jr rn.k pw jr.n nṯrw n ḥrw dȝtj n ḥrw sk sn n ḥrw ḥw s[n] n ḥrw ᶜbš sn [sk.k sn ḥw.k sn] ᶜbš.k [sn jr š jr wȝḏ-wr] [273]
"So, you shall ascend to the Sun's eye[274], to the identity that the gods have made for you: (that) of Horus of the Duat, of Horus who lights them up, of Horus who proclaims th[em], of Horus who kindles them, [and you will light them up, you will proclaim them], and you will kindle [them at the lake, at the Great Green]".

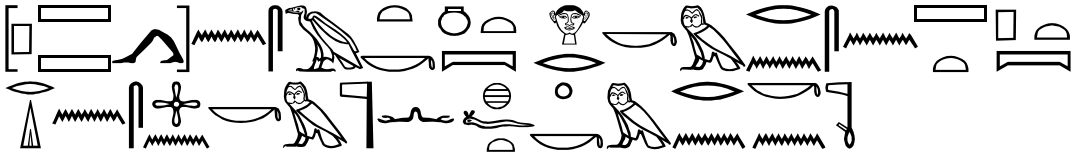

In this passages it is said about granting a deceased with the name "Horus of Duat" (i.e. the night luminary incarnated in the stars) and, being so, about performing duties by him – lighting up gods–stars in the night sky. In PT 665 D, §40 P[b] the verb ḥw has the determinative of ḥwj "proclaim", that is {an arm holding feather}  [275], it means that the verb ḥw in this group of three is surely not ḥwj "strike". It also means that sk with and once without the {star} determinative can not be sk "destroy". Moreover, as I said above, sk and ᶜbš both have {star} determinative[276]. Taking into account all said above the present author presumes that suggested readings for the verbs are right and the meaning of sk in the following passage is clear now:

jṯ.n.ṯ n.ṯ nṯr nb ḫr.ṯ ḫr ḥbȝ.f sk.ṯ sn m ḫȝ-bȝ.s jm.sn ḥm r.ṯ m sbȝw jm.ṯ rḏj ḥr NN jr.ṯ m rn.ṯ ḥrt[277]
"(As) you have taken every god to you, who has his Sea-Mullet boat, that you might light them up in the night sky[278], and they might not go away from you as stars, you should not let Pepi go away from you, in your name (i.e. hypostasis) of the Above"[279]

10)

št-pt "a thing[280] of the sky"  as a designation for natron or a sort of natron.

Cf. §27e N: št-pt ṯȝ 5 mḥw "a thing of the sky-natron, 5 pellets, of the Nile Valley". The sign R9 in the copy of N, is, probably, a determinative just like in  "ḥzmn-natron" of §864d N.

[pšš].n s mjwt.k nwt ḥr.k m rn.s n št-pt rḏ.n.s wn.k m nṯr n ḫft.k m rn.k n nṯr[281]

---

sn m šj d sn m wȝḏ-wr "[…] destroying your opponents. Destroy them, sweep them aside from you, put them in the lake, put them in the Great Green". However as is clear from the determinative of ᶜbš which is {jug}  (the same of ᶜbš of §692c) it is clear that different sk and ᶜbš are used.

[273] §§1734b-d.

[274] I.e. to the sky.

[275] Cf. §§1195a.

[276] ᶜbš doesn't have it only in §§1734b-d Star determinative, however as secondary, also occurs in the verb sk "perish" in §§823e, 1080b, 1760c, 1812c, 2102b.

[277] §§785a-d

[278] ḫȝ-bȝ.s is literally "a Thousand of Her bas".

[279] In this passage as in many others there is a play on words between ḥrj "go away" and ḥrt "the Far Above (i.e. the Sky)".

[280] The word "thing" (in the Old Kingdom spelled usually prefixed jḫt/jšt also ḫt) spelled št (i.e. exactly like in št-pt) in the mastaba of Iu (Hassan, Giza I, fig. 172, (s)k sw ḳrs(j) m št.f nt jmnt "Notice him buried in his thing/property of the West (i.e. in his tomb)").

[281] §§638a-b N.

"Your mother Nut has spread herself over you, in her name (i.e. hypostasis) of natron (lit. a thing of the sky).
She has made you be a god without an opponent of yours, in your name of natron-salt"

The {settlement plan}-O49 determinative  which occurs in št-pt in §§580c, 638a TM, seems to be secondary[282] (it is possible, however, that there was a settlement named after natron). This determinative is absent in §638a PN, it is also absent on every, but one, descendant copies in CT VIII, §638a, and on the lid of the wooden coffin of Khnumhotep (MMA 15.2.2, spelled št-pt). The spell PT 368 to which §§638a-b belong was among the spells desined for cleansing a mouth with natron water; here also belongs PT 33[283], hence the presence of natron word play in the passage.

11) Verbs with the 1st person suffix not spelled – ḥw  , j.(n)ḏ  /  , mj  , ms  , smwn

It seems that there is a group of verbs which were used almost exclusively with the 1st person suffix .j "I" and, probably, for that reason it was always omitted in writing.

It has been suggested for long time ago that the verb j.nḏ in the expression j.nḏ ḥr.k "Greetings" actually has unwritten 1st person suffix .j and that the expression actually means "I greet/ your face" or the like[284]. There must be nothing strange in unwritten 1st person suffix .j, firstly because it was common feature of the Old Kingdom spellings which preserved in the case of these expressions in the Middle Egyptian, and secondly because in the PT even the verb itself was half written as j.ḏ in the expression –  and  [285]. Fortunately we have passages where the suffix was spelled, that of 1st person and others:

nḏ.j ḥr.k pjpj nfr-kȝ-rˁ [286]
"I greet you, Pepi Neferkare"

j.n.f nḏ.f ḥr.t m jw ns(r)sr [287]
"He has come to greet you from the Island of Blazing"

Moreover there are passages, where we have ḥr n "face of" and plural ḥrw "face of", which indicates, that Hr in the phrase is no doubt "face". The verb nḏ probably has its basic meaning "tend" in the expression. Thus j.nḏ(.j) ḥr.k NN was an idiom for "Greetings, Hail to" with the probable literal meaning "I have tended[288] your face, N". As to the idiomatic meaning of the literal reading ("tend [282] The same phenomenon, the secondary {settlement plan}-O49 sign, occurs at the end of the divinity's names jw.s ʿȝ.s "She-comes-and-grows-big" (§1210a), and probably is the influence from the same named village (jw.s ʿȝ.s, Petrie, Medum, pl.12, 15) and also occurs in sȝḥ "Orion" (§1763c N, spelled without O49 in Nt). Outside the PT this sign occurs as secondary in the epithet of Anubis – jmj-wt "he who is in the mummy-wrappings". The full list of secondary O49 I give in Shmakov, Critical Analysis, PT 81, 1.

[283] This spell has §25b which is identical with §638b.
[284] Alan Gardiner "jnḏ ḥr.t…a formula which perhaps originally meant 'I salute thy face'" (Gardiner, E. G., §272, p. 209). In his grammar James Allen comments on the expression j.nḏ ḥr: "Although it is used (in this form) (j.nḏ ḥr.k – T. S.) only as an interjection, it may derive from an original verbal expression j.nḏ.j ḥr.k (etc.), meaning something like "May I inquire about you," with the first-person suffix unwritten" (Allen, M. E., 16.8, p. 195).
[285] §471c W. The full spelling with the nḏ-sing in the copy of N only (e.g. §§470a, 471b).
[286] PT 672, §1988d, 1989b.
[287] CT I, 117b.
[288] However, the literal meaning "I have inquired after your face (i.e. after your mood?)" cannot be ruled out taking into account the meaning of nḏ in such word-combinations as nḏ sḫr "inquire after the condition" and nḏ ḫrt "greet, inquire after the state".

someone's face"), compare the expression wḏʿ-mdw "judge", which literally is probably "separate/cut the words". Cf. the full spelling of the word face in §186b (ḥr-r-k) instead of that with a {stroke}, cf. also

nḏ.t(j) ḥr.f jn ḥrw m ꜣḫt [289]
"his face is tended by Horus in the Behind the Horizon" ḥr in the passage is written with the {stroke} sign for ideograms, not in full form (when r is written out) which is the case when preposition ḥr comes with a suffix.

j(n)ḏ(.j) ḥr.k m fdw.k jpw ḥrw ḥtpw [290]
"Greetings (lit. I have tended your face) in these four content faces of yours"
(The literal meaning is clear: I have tended your face in these your faces)

j.nḏ.j ḥr n ꜣḫ [291]
"I am tending the face of the magician"

nḏ.n.k ḥr n rʿ s.ḥtp.n.k ḥr n psḏtj [292]
"You have tended the face of the Sun, you have pleased the face of the Dual Ennead"

jj.n.j ḫr.ṯn nḏ(.j) ḥr(w).ṯn jpw jrw.n nw [293]
"I have come that I may tend these your face(s), which Nu has made"

j.nḏ(.j) ḥr n jʿrwt.k [jp]w[294]
"I have tended the face(s) of these your uraei" (cf. ibid jw s.ḥtp.n.s ḥr n jʿrrwt.k "She has pleased the face(s) of your uraei")

j.nḏ(.j) ḥr.k rʿ m wnwt.k tw sḫm.k jm.s m [ḫ]ft(j)w.k j.nḏ(.j) ḥr n ꜣsbwt.k s.{m}<ꜣ>mm(w)<t> n.k ḫft(j)w.k s.ḫrywt sbjw ḥr.k [295]
"Greetings (lit. I have tended your face), Sun in this your hour in which you are in control of your opponents, I have (also) greeted (lit. tended the face(s) of) your uraei (lit. scorching ones) who are burning your opponents down for you (and) are overthrowing those who rebel against you" nḏ ḥr n gbb jt(j) nṯrw m ḏd n.f nṯrw mn(.w) ḥr st.sn[296]

"the face of Geb, father of gods, has been tended by saying to him that gods are firm on their place(s)"

j.nḏ(.j) ḥrw.ṯn bꜣw ḫmnnw[297]
"Greetings (lit. I have tended your faces), bas of Hermopolis" nḏ ḥr.k jn zkr pjpj nfr-kꜣ-rʿ jʿ ḥr.k jn dwꜣ wr[298]

"Your face has been tended (i.e., you have been greeted) by Sokar, Pepi Neferkare, and your face has been washed by Great Beard"

[289] PT 677, §2019c.
[290] PT 519, §1207b.
[291] CT I, 80g.
[292] CT III, 188b-c.
[293] CT VII, 21f.
[294] Naville, Deir el Bahari IV, pl. 114.
[295] Graefe, Stundenritual, 4th hour, P.
[296] Sethy I, Abydos I pl. 4, 18.
[297] Budge, BD114:9.
[298] PT 682, §2042a-b.

From this passage (as well as the passages listed just above), which has actions done to the face of the king, it is clear that ḥr in j.nḏ(.j) ḥr.k is no doubt "face".

nḏ(.j) ḥr.k nfr ḥr nb m33wtj[299]
"Greetings (lit. I have tended your face), beautiful of face, owner of two looking eyes"

This word combination probably also occurs in the form of a noun nḏt ḥr "gift" (Wb.II:373:1), literally probably "face-tending". Alan Gardiner too read ḥr in this expression as "face": "jnḏ ḥr.t…a formula which perhaps originally meant 'I salute thy face'" (Gardiner, E. G., §272, p. 209).

It seems that the word ḥw  [300], analyzed as a particle[301], in the phrase ḥw 3, ḥ(w)3, ḥ(w)3 3, ḥwj 3[302] is actually a verb, for as the following passages show it was followed by a dependent pronoun (tw) and a verb in the form of a stative, like the imperatives of mj and st in the passages above:

ḥw(.j) 3 tw jp.t(j) s.(w)ḏ3.t(j) m sʿḥ.k pn ntj m-b3ḥ.j[303]
"I want you recognized/registered and made sound in this your rank which is before (that of) mine"

i.e. "Would that you are recognized/registered and made sound in this your rank which is before (that of) mine"

jnk z3 j.mr.f sḏm sḏm jnk z3.k ḥw(.j) tw m3[.t(j)] rʿ nb[304]
"I am the beloved son of his father (lit. the son whom he (i. e. his father) loves), listen, listen! I am your son, I want you new every day!"

ḥw(.j) 3 sw rḫs(.w) m dsw bjbj m ʿwt[305]
"I want him butchered with the sharp (? bjbj) knives from the limbs"

In the Old Egyptian we can find it used without enclitic 3, clearly as a verb of to express a polite wish: "pray/beseech/would like":

ḥw.(j) wḏ k3.k pw mrjj rʿ rḏjt n.(j) rwt nt jn r jz(.j) pf n ḥr(j)-ntr[306]
"I pray/beseech/would like that your ka-force, whom the Sun loves, commanded giving me a (false)-door of stone to that my tomb of the necropolis"

This is the direct speech of the deceased's address[307] to the king from his autobiography. It is hard to imagine that the person started his speech to the king with "Would that" or the like, it is strange for

[299] CT VI, 123b.

[300] After the Old Kingdom it is sometimes spelled with A2 det. –

[301] "If only, Would that, I wish" (Allen, M. E., 16.6.12) seems to be a sḏm.f form of the verb ḥw(j) "wish, would like" (not "announce, proclaim").

[302] It is used with enclitic 3 after the Old Kingdom.

[303] CT I, 198e.

[304] CT I, 200d-g.

[305] CT VI, 386f.

[306] Urk.I:38:8-10.

[307] it is preceded with "Great of salving (i.e. head physician) Niankhisohmet, he said to His Person:" (Urk.I:38:7, wr zjn n-ʿnḫ.j-sḫmt ḏd.(j) ḥr ḥm.f).

request in our languages and it was impossible, no doubt, in Egyptian. The narration of the request to the king in other autobiographies was dbḥ.n.j/dbḥ.k(j) m-ꜥ nswt/nb.(j) "I asked from the king/my lord".

In the following passages it is clear that ḥw.(j) is a sḏm.f by the following 1st person suffixes and an infinitive as the direct object of ḥw.(j):

ḥw.(j) ȝ ḏd n mjwt.(j) tw ntt wj snḏ.k wrt jw.k m pf gs[308]
"I wish (I could) tell to that mother of mine that I am very afraid and boatless on yonder side"

ḥw.(j) zn zšȝw[309]
"I wish to open the scrolls"

It is possible that the verb is present in the PT:

ḥw(.j) kw wnjs jnn(.j) kw wnjs[310]
"I wish you, Unis, I'm beckoning/calling you, Unis!"

The first verb is in graphical transposition[311] and is sḏm.f of ḥwj "wish, want, would like". The second verb seems to be njnj beckon, call (to me, to me) as in nwt ḥr njnj m ḥr.k "Nut is beckoning/calling before you". The passage is Isis' and Nephthys' speech as is clear from the following passages:

ḥw(.j) kw pjpj nfr-kȝ-rꜥ j.nn(.j) k(w) pjpj nfr-kȝ-rꜥ jnk nbt-ḥwt [312]
"I wish you, Pepi Neferkare, I'm beckoning/calling you, Pepi Neferkare! I am Nephthys" ḥw(.j) kw pjpj [j].nn(.j) kw pjpj nfr-kȝ-rꜥ jnk ȝst [313]

"I wish you, Pepi, I'm beckoning/calling you, Pepi Neferkare! I am Isis" nw r.f ḏd.n.k rꜥ ḥw.j zȝ.(j) j.t(j) tw rꜥ [314]

"that which you said, Sun—"I would like my son," so you said, Sun"

In this view it seems that ḥw, which refers to the force of the creator and is meantioned along with sjȝ "Perception", has actually the meaning "Wish/Volition", not "Annunciation" – it fits the context of the passages from the autobiography of Weni, one of which is read above (item # 4):

ḫpr.n mj mj-ḳd ḫft ḥw wḏ.n ḥm n nb.(j)[315]
"Everything (lit. according to appearance) happened from my arm according to the Wish/Volition[316]

[308] CT VI, 408o-p.
[309] Kemit, pl. 17.
[310] §218c.
[311] The point is that w-{quail chick}-G43 better fits the space between the two ḏd-mdw signs than it does less wide ḥ-{wick}-V28, hence it is written wḥ, instead of the correct ḥw, which occurs in §218c MNNtWd[a] (NCPT).
[312] PT 628, §1786b.
[313] PT 664A, §*1884a.
[314] PT 467, §886a P. The descendant of this passage in the Middle Kingdom has enclitic ȝ: nw jr.f ḏd.n.k ḥw.(j) ȝ n.j zȝ.j (CT III, 334c-d) "So, this is what you said: "I would like my son for me,""
[315] Urk.I:108:10.

which the Person of my lord expressed (lit. ordered)"

sj3  and ḥw  [317] are spelled after the Old Kingdom with the A2 det., i.e. exactly like sometimes ḥw "wish" is spelled –  .

On this evidence it seems that ms  and smwn  which occur in the Middle Egyptian are verbs too, probably having the meaning ms.(j) "I swear" and smwn.(j) "I suppose". In fact smwn occurs once with the suffix attached:

smwn.k r rdjt mȝ.j bw wršw jb.j jm[318]
"Perhaps you are to let me see the place where my heart spends the day", literally "You are supposed[319] to let me see the place my heart spends the day in"

nb.j smwn.(j) sḫtj.f pw[320]
"My lord, it is probably his peasant", literally "My lord, I suppose it is his peasant" smwn(.j) mzḥ pn ḥȝ(.w)[321]

"Perhaps this crocodile is dangerous"/ "This crocodile is probably dangerous", literally "I suppose this crocodile is dangerous"

jw ms.(j) špsw m nḫwt[322]
"Surely/Truly, nobles are wailing", literally "I swear, nobles are in lamentation"

The phrase jw ms.(j) "I swear" was often used by not so fair oath-giver that it eventually became an idiom for "exaggeration":

nn m jw ms.(j)[323] "(It was said) not in exaggeration (lit. not as "I swear")"[324]

The word mj  "please, pray" if not an extensive use of mj "see" may be the verb "ask, beg, pray", mj.(j) "I pray" – i.e. "please, pray", cf.

j.ḏd mj.j rn n NN[325]
"Say, please, the name of NN"

The spelling mjj is probably for mj.j "I pray",

---

[316] For the meaning of ḥw read below.
[317] Allen, M. E., Essay 13, p.157.
[318] Sin., B 157–58.
[319] It seems that it is passive sḏm.f.
[320] Peas. R 13, 5
[321] Westc. 4, 1
[322] Adm. 2,7
[323] Urk.IV:101:12, also ibid. 776:10, 808:13, 973:11.
[324] Cf. Allen: "The phrase jw ms…was so associated with sentences used to persuade that it eventually became an idiom for "exaggeration" " (Allen, M. E., 16.7 7), p.198).
[325] §520b. The same phrase with same spelling ḏd mj.j in §264a.

12) The meaning of the expression h3  [326] and j3  in the Pyramid and Coffin Texts.

It was suggested long ago by Alan Gardiner that  is related to hy "hail"[327]

It once occurs spelled  [328] and, just like in the case of ḥw, it occurs without 3 as jhj  [329] or hjj which indicates that 3, no doubt, just like in the case of ḥw, was enclitic particle here and that the spelling  was short spelling for hjj 3 * "Greetings!"

Arguments:

a) As I already said above there are writings of h-3 without enclitic 3 and once it is written  [330] which indicates that the spelling  was short spelling, probably of *  , *  or *.

b)  of §§196a–b and 198a is spelled in its later copy[331] as  .

c) Both jhj and h-3 begin passages, thus jhj jhj tz tw NN pw [332] and

jhj tz tw jt.(j) NN pw  [333] can be compared with

h-3 NN pw tz tw  [334]

d) The passage j.hj.j j.hj.j jrr.j n.k sw j.hj.j pn jt.j n[335] read "Ah! Ah! I make it for you—this “Ah!”—my father, because…" seems strange and meaningless, it makes much more sense when read "My

---

[326] This (with the {walking legs}-D54) is the Middle Kingdom spelling and is influenced by the verb h3j "descend", i.e. has the determinative of this verb as secondary.

[327] "jnḏ ḥr.t…the words  ,  i and  h3, which occasionally accompany the vocative…Closely related to the latter is probably  hy, which may best be translated ‘hail’, ex.  hy n.k ‘hail to thee’ (Sin. B 274)" (Gardiner, E. G., §258, p. 189)

[328] §769c

[329] §§196a–b,198a, 214a 654a, 809a, 1164a, 1752c.

[330] This spelling could be read as jh 3 as well as hj 3, because of the fact that j could be spelled before h to fit the space better.

[331] CT VIII, §§196a–b and 198a, 1164a

[332] §654a.

[333] §1164a N.

[334] §§870a, 1938a.

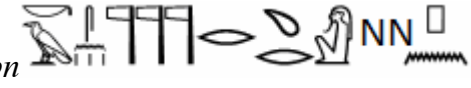

[335] §§809a-b.

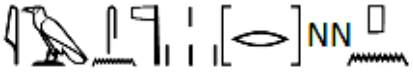

Greetings! My Greetings! I make it for you—this "My Greetings! "–, my father, because…"

e) in §591c P[b] instead of ḥ h-ȝ  is written ḥ-ȝ h  which probably indicates that enclitic ȝ refers to ḥ(w.j) "I wish", not to h(j) "greetings"

In the Middle Kingdom and later hy occurs in the expression hy hnw/hy hny "greeting (and) jubilation"[336] and is determined there with  and  [337]

Similarly there is a doubt that jȝ  which sometimes occurs as synonym of the h-ȝ  [338] is a vocative. Once it occurs as a variant of kȝ.sn "they say": "Go, row to the Field of Rushes to the interior of the islands of the Above, navigate (lit. take the course) therein to Him who is on his ḳȝdt-plant"[339]

kȝ.sn nṯrw r jstjr NN pn  [340] "they say, gods, to this Osiris NN"

jȝ.sn nṯrw r NN pn  and  [341]

This may indicate that jȝ is actually jȝ.(j) "I utter" and it does occur in the spells that have the 1st person or where it may be present:

jȝ.(j) NN ḫȝ.k m t ḫȝ.k m ḥnḳt[342]
"I utter, NN, your thousand in bread, your thousand in beer…"

jȝ.(j) NN pn/p j.nḏ.(j) ḥr.k ḥḥ sšȝȝ.n.k sšȝȝ km wr ḫn.n.k ḫnt nṯr smsw
jd.n.k jdt ḳȝj skm m jwnw ʿnḫ.tj ʿnḫ.tj wȝs.tj wȝs.tj wṯz.(j) NN ʿnḫ m ḫt.k ʿnḫ.tj[343]
"I utter, NN! I greet your face, Eternal one!
You have totally stopped, the Great Black Bull,
You have totally halted/alighted, the Senior god,
You have totally become calm, You with long grey hair in Heliopolis,
Be alive, be alive! Be authoritative, be authoritative!
(for) I bear, NN, life in your wake. Be alive!"[344]

---

[336] Hannig, MR, p. 1560.
[337] CT I, 4-5e.
[338] e.g., §1390a; CT I, 192e, 204c, 211b, 235g.
[339] CT I, 94a-b
[340] ibid, 94c.
[341] ibid. T1L[a] T1l[b]
[342] PT *793, §19
[343] §§1390a-91
[344] The spelling ḫnn.k for ḫn.n.k, jd "become calm" is influenced by jd "cense". For the reading cf. PT 643B which is a variant spell, §§1820b–22c (restored with CT VIII): [j.gr (km?)] wr sšȝȝ [nṯr smsw jdj ḳȝ skm] n jḫt [prt jm.f NN pw ḫr kȝ].k ʿḥʿ kȝ.k mm [nṯrw ḫpr šʿt.f ḏs.f r.sn ḫw.f] tpj.k tȝ hȝ NN [pw m.k w jnk zȝ.k w]ṯz.(j) kȝ m ḫt.k [wṯz.(j) ʿnḫ m ḫt.k] wṯz.(j) wȝs m ḫt.k jsjrt NN [pw] "[As] the great one (or great black one ?) [grew silent, the senior god] stopped, [and the one with long grey hair has become calm] because of the thing came out of him, [O Pepi Neferkare, to] your [ka]. Your ka will stand up among [the gods; his own (lit. of his person) veneration has occured against their's and he will defend] your survivor (i.e. your name ?).

References:

Allen, M. E., — Allen, James Peter. Middle Egyptian: An Introduction to the Language and Culture of Hieroglyphs. Cambridge University Press, 2000 (1st edition). Second edition, revised, Cambridge University Press, 2010.

Allen, P. T., — Allen, James Peter. The Ancient Egyptian Pyramid Texts. Society of Biblical Literature, Atlanta, 2005.

Altenmuller, SAK 1974, — Hartwig Altenmuller, Zur Vergottlichung des Konigs Unas im Alten Reich, in Studien zur Altagyptischen Kultur, Bd. 1 (1974), pp. 1-18 Published by: Helmut Buske Verlag GmbH (http://www.jstor.org/stable/25149944)

Baines, Origins, — "Origins of Egyptian kingship." Pages 95–156 in O'Connor, David, and David P. Silverman. 1995. Ancient Egyptian Kingship. Probleme der Ägyptologie 9. Leiden–New York–Cologne: Brill.

Berlev, Trudovoe naselenie, — Oleg D. Berlev, Trudovoe Naselenie Egypta v Epohu Srednego Carstva [Labor Population in Egypt in the Middle Kingdom epoch]. Moscow, 1972.

Berlev, Sculpture, — Oleg D. Berlev, Svetlana I. Hodjash [the book entries were written and texts translated by Oleg D. Berlev], Sculpture of Ancient Egypt in the collection of the Pushkin State Museum of Fine Arts, Catalogue, Moscow, "Vostochnaya Literatura" publisher, Moscow, 2004.

BM — British Museum (http://www.britishmuseum.org), London.

Budge, —Budge, E. A. Wallis. The book of the dead. The chapters of coming forth by day. London, 1898. (http://www.etana.org/sites/default/files/coretexts/14900.pdf)

Budge II, —Budge, E. A. Wallis. The chapters of Coming forth by day or, The Theban recension of the Book of the dead : the Egyptian hieroglyphic text edited from numerous papyri. Published by K. Paul, Trench, Trübner. London 1910.
(http://openlibrary.org/books/OL24650285M/The_chapters_of_Coming_forth_by_day)

CM — (stela) Cairo Museum.

CT I-VIII— Adriaan de Buck. 1935-1961. The Egyptian Coffin Texts. 7 vols. Oriental Institute Publications 34, 49, 64, 67, 73, 81, 87. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.
J. P. Allen. The Egyptian Coffin Texts. vol. 8. Middle Kingdom Copies of Pyramid Texts. Oriental Institute Publications 132. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

CT I (spells 1-75) (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip34.pdf)
CT II (spells 76-163) (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip49.pdf)
CT III (spells 164-267) (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip64.pdf)
CT VI (spells 268-354) (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip67.pdf)
CT V (spells 355-471) (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip73.pdf)
CT VI (spells 472-787) (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip81.pdf)
CT VII (spells 787-1185) (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip87.pdf)

Greetings, Pepi Neferkare! [You shall see me: I am your son], I bear ka in your wake, [I bear life in your wake], I bear authority in your wake, Osiris Pepi Neferkare".

CT VIII (http://oi.uchicago.edu/pdf/oip132.pdf)

Faulkner, Dictionary, — Faulkner R. O., A Concise Dictionary of Middle Egyptian. Oxford, 1962.

Faulkner, PT, — Faulkner R. O., The Ancient Egyptian Pyramid Texts, Translated into English. Oxford: Oxford University Press. 1969.

Gardiner, E. G. — A. H. Gardiner. Egyptian Grammar; Being an Introduction to the Study of Hieroglyphs. 3rd ed. Oxford, Griffith Institute, 1957.

Goedicke, Die Stellung, — Goedicke, Hans. Die Stellung des Königs im alten Reich. ÄA 2. 1960.

Hannig, MR — R. Hannig. Ägyptisches Handwörterbuch II. Mittleres Reich und Zweite Zwischenzeit, Mainz am Rhein, 2006.

Hassan, Giza, — Selim Hassan, Excavations at Giza, vol. I-VII, Cairo, 1929-1953. (http://www.gizapyramids.org/code/emuseum.asp?newpage=authors_list)

Hays, Structure, — Harold M. Hays. The Typological Structure of the PT and its Continuities with Middle Kingdom Mortuary Literature. University of Chicago Ph.D. thesis (dissertation). Chicago, 2006.

James, Khentika — James, T.G.H., with the collaboration of M.R. Apted. The Mastaba of Khentika called Ikhekhi. ASE vol. 30. London: Egypt Exploration Society, 1953.

Jones, Titles, — Dilwyn Jones, An Index of Ancient Egyptian Titles, Epithets and Phrases of the Old Kingdom, Volumes I-II; BAR International series 866 (I-II), 2000;

Junker, Giza, — Hermann Junker, Giza, vols. I-XII, Wien-Leipzig, 1929-1955. (http://www.gizapyramids.org/code/emuseum.asp?newpage=authors_list)

Kanawati-Hassan, Ankhmahor — Kanawati N., Hassan A., The Teti Cemetery at Saqqara, vol. II. The Tomb of Ankhmahor (The Australian Centre of Egyptology: Reports 9). Sydney, 1997.

Kanawati-Raziq, Hesi, — Kanawati N., Abder-Raziq M., The Teti Cemetery at Saqqara, vol. V. The Tomb of Hesi (The Australian Centre of Egyptology: Reports 13). Warminster, 1999.

Kanawati-Raziq, Sankhuiptah, — Kanawati N., Abder-Raziq M., The Teti Cemetery at Saqqara, vol. III. The Tombs of Nefersheshemre and Seankhuiptah (The Australian Centre of Egyptology: Reports 11). Sydney, 1998.

Mercer, P. T., — Mercer, Samuel A. B. 1952. The Pyramid Texts in Translation and Commentary. 4 vols. New York: Longmans, Green.

MMA — Metropolitan Museum of Art (http://www.metmuseum.org), New York.

Myśliwiec, Merefnebef — Karol Myśliwiec and others, The tomb of Merefnebef. text, plates. Polish-Egyptian Archaeological Mission, Saqqara I, ZAŚ PAN.

Perepiolkin — Yuriy Ya. Perepiolkin, Chastnaia sobstvennost v predstavlenii egyptian Starogo carstva [The Private ownership as viewed by the Egyptians of the Old Kingdom], in Palestinskiy sbornik 16

(79), Moskow-Leningrad, 1966.
Parts I-II (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Property/Property_01-80.pdf)
Parts III-IV (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Property/Property_81-121.pdf)
In German: Perepelkin J. J., Privateigentum in der Vorstellung der Ägypter des Alten Reiches (translated Renate Müller-Wollerman). Tübingen, 1986.

Perepiolkin Yuriy Ya., Hozyaystvo staroegypetskyh velmog [The Farm of the Old Kingdom Officials], Moscow, 1988.
Introduction, the Concept of Private ownership (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/1-52.pdf)
Slavery (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/53-88.pdf)
Servants of ka/Servants of a double (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/89-111.pdf)
Hiring labour, villiges-njwwt (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/112-164.pdf)
Ship's gangs (jzwt) (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/165-198.pdf)
Cattle raising, fishing, bird hunting, poultry farming, Reserve/Protected land (about the term pr Snaw "kitchen-storehouse") (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/199-228.pdf)
Workshops (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/229-286.pdf)
Official's farm as a whole, references and contents (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Manor/287-301.pdf)

The book review by Mihail Korostovcev (also in Russian) (http://www.egyptology.ru/perepelkin/Korostovtsev_annotation.pdf)

PT, § — Kurt Sethe. 1908–1922. Die altägyptische Pyramidentexte. 4 vols. Leipzig: Hinrichs.

PT I (http://www.lib.uchicago.edu/cgi-bin/eos/eos_title.pl?callnum=PJ1553.A1_1908_cop3)
PT II (http://www.lib.uchicago.edu/cgi-bin/eos/eos_title.pl?callnum=PJ1553.A1_1908_vol2_cop3)

— A new concordance of the Pyramid Texts. Allen, James Peter. VI vols. Brown University. 2013 (https://www.dropbox.com/sh/0xo88uy04urnz0v/o16_ojF8f_)

Quibell, Excavations, II, — James Edward Quibell, Excavations at Saqqara (1907-1908), vol II, Le Caire: Impr. de l'Institut français d'archéologie orientale, 1908.
(https://archive.org/details/excavationsatsaq02quibuoft)

Sethy I, Abydos —

I. The Temple of King Sethos I at Abydos, Volume I: The Chapels of Osiris, Isis and Horus. 1933 (http://oi.uchicago.edu/research/pubs/catalog/misc/sethos1.html)

II. The Temple of King Sethos I at Abydos, Volume II: The Chapels of Amen-Rē, Rē-Harakhti, Ptah, and King Sethos. 1935 (http://oi.uchicago.edu/research/pubs/catalog/misc/sethos2.html)

III. The Temple of King Sethos I at Abydos, Volume III: The Osiris Complex. 1938 (http://oi.uchicago.edu/research/pubs/catalog/misc/sethos3.html)

IV. The Temple of King Sethos I at Abydos, Volume IV: The Second Hypostyle Hall. 1958 (http://oi.uchicago.edu/research/pubs/catalog/misc/sethos4.html)

Shmakov, Critical Analysis, — Timofey T. Shmakov, Critical Analysis of J.P.Allen's "The Ancient Egyptian Pyramid Texts", Omsk-Tricht, 2012.

Simpson, Mersyankh III, — William Kelly Simpson, Giza Mastabas Vol. 1: The Mastaba of Queen Mersyankh III, Boston: Museum of Fine Arts, 1974 (http://www.gizapyramids.org/code/emuseum.asp?newpage=gizamastabas)

Steindorff, Ti, — Steindorff, G., Das Grab des Ti, Leipzig, 1913.

Strudwick, Texts from the Pyramid Age, — Nigel C. Strudwick, Texts from the Pyramid Age, Society of Biblical Literature, Atlanta, 2005.

Urk.I — Kurt Sethe, Urkunden des Alten Reichs, 2nd rev. ed., vol. I-IV. Leipzig, 1932-1933.

Urk.IV — Kurt Sethe, Urkunden der 18. Dynastie, fasc. 1-16: Historisch-biographische Urkunden. Leipzig, 1906-1909.

Wolfgang Helck, Urkunden der 18. Dynastie, fascicle 17: Biographische Inschriften von Zeitgenossen Thutmosis' III. und Amenophis' II.. Berlin, 1955.

Urk. VII — Kurt Sethe, W Erichsen, Historisch-biographische Urkunden des Mittleren Reiches. Leipzig, 1931.

Wb. — Wörterbuch der Aegyptischen Sprache, im Auftrage der deutschen Akademien hrsg. von Adolf Erman und Hermann Grapow. Bd. I-V. Unveränderter Nachdruck. Berlin, 1971 (http://www.egyptology.ru/lang.htm)